An Award for Heroism Given

SHARED EXPERIENCE — Mrs. Teiko Izusto, secretary at the South San Francisco Police Department, discusses World War II Relocation Camps with Dr. Ray L. Ferguson, a teacher in the South San Francisco Unified School District. Ferguson is writing a unit of studies regarding the camps for history, political science and ethnic studies teachers. He is seeking any and all information of the period, and would especially like to interview persons directly involved. (Post Photo)

Lake Merced is a cold, murky body of water that serves as a secondary water supply for San Francisco.

Along its bottom grows a variety of vegetation quick to entangle anything or anyone that happens into it.

Into this lake on the night of February 11, 1971 dived off-duty Daly City policeman Terry Hanebeck in search of a fellow officer whose helicopter had crashed.

Time and again young Hanebeck, a qualified diver, groped deep beneath the surface in search of any survivors of the downed San Francisco police helicopter.

Others assisting in the effort to locate a missing crewman of the aircraft had to give up because of exhaustion and the biting cold waters.

He had been visiting the boat house area at the lake with fellow D.C. officer James McHenry when the craft, piloted by S.F. officer Stanley Ottman, smashed into the water and quickly submerged.

Ottman cleared the wreckage and swam to shore.

His partner, officer Charles Logasa, popped to the surface in the spot where the helicopter crashed, but was spotted by would-be rescuers sinking beneath the surface shortly after.

With McHenry and an unidentified boat handler, Hanebeck proceeded by powerboat to the crash scene and started diving in search of the stricken officer.

Although he is a qualified diver, Hanebeck was not equipped with the normal apparatus to conduct such a prolonged search. All he had was a piece of rope and the apparent determination to keep looking.

Despite his efforts, the officer aided by divers from the San Francisco Fire Department, was unable to save the life of Logasa.

Terry Hanebeck

His superiors — supported by those at the scene of the tragedy — agreed Hanebeck had done a selfless and outstanding job on that night.

Captain David A. Hansen, with the approval of Chief Roland A. Petrocchi, commended Hanebeck personally and recommended him for the Peninsula Police Officers meritorious award — an award that reflects the highest traditions of law enforcement officers.

There was an avalanche of data to support Hansen's recommendation for the PPOA award.

—Hanebeck was unfamiliar with the lake but continued to risk his life by repeatedly diving.

—The officer on one occasion had to let go the lifeline to enter the crushed cockpit to insure no one was trapped inside.

—Without any diving apparatus Hanebeck penetrated deep into the weed-covered bottom o fthe lake.

In ceremonies held recently Hanebeck received the meritorious award from his peers in the PPOA. The award appears as an oak leaf cluster on his uniform sleeve.

Previous to Hanebeck's receiving the award, two other Daly City policemen were recipients — Lt. Charles Terry for rescuing a man from the surf, and sergeant Bob Staples who disarmed a rifle-toting husband on Christmas eve 1970.

Until recently the award could only be given to San Mateo County policemen who were members of the PPOA.

This has been amended.

Today, any police officer — member or not — and any citizen can receive the coveted award.

It is not an annual award. Rather, any department may select at any time a deserving officer.

S.S.F. Teacher Writes on Japanese Relocation

By BOB PETERSON

One aspect of American history is being re-written at South San Francisco High School.

Dr. Ray L. Ferguson is in the process of preparing a unit of studies on the relocation camps that interned Japanese Americans during the Second World War.

The project resulted partially after a request from students, and because it has "been a burning thing" with the instructor of political science.

Ferguson said he hopes to eventually expand the project into a book. "I certainly hope that when it is written the unit of studies will not remain just in this district," said Ferguson.

He already has shown the ability to compose material significant in today's society. Ferguson authored the South San Francisco Unified School District's Study Guide For The Selective Service System, used in grades 10 through 12.

This guide informs the young male of his rights and responsibilities with the draft. It eceived a commendation from the Washington, D.C., Selective Service Office.

Ferguson said his efforts are geared toward attempting to develop an awareness in students of all the rights and responsibilities they have.

"They should know that at any time they can lose certain freedoms, too," said Ferguson.

He was referring specifically to Title II of the Internal Security Act of the United States which says that during a national emergency the government can set up detention camps, such as those that interned the Japanese people.

This act, incidentally, is prsently being fought by many legislators, including Senator Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, a member of the WWII Japanese American unit that distinguished itself so well in the European Theater.

The effort is aimed at revoking those sections of the law having to do with establishing the detention centers.

Ferguson says that present history books do not give a good personal account of the relocation camps. "It can't be a good history of what happened until you get the feelings of the persons involved in what took place," said Ferguson. "I need to know more about it. There is really little written information available."

He is attempting to secure personal interviews, or obtain information by letter, from anyone willing to share their experiences in the assembly centers and re-location camps.

Ferguson said he also wants to obtain photographs, film and other documents of that period. He hopes to get some type of federal grant to help pay the mounting expense of collecting

Collett and Greenwood Rap Action

Frank Greenwood, superintendent of the Jefferson elementary school district has replied to criticism of him by three trustees Aug. 24. He was supported by Trustee Albert Collett. Greenwood said:

"I cannot permit Trustee Mrs. Dorothy Adams' statement, concurred in by the majority of the board of trustees to pass without reply. Steadfastly I have requested, in open meetings, that any matters in connection with my contract be discussed at an open public meeting, not at executive session, so that the public might know the truth. Contrary to this request, which I feel I had the right to make, the board acted on certain alleged acts concerning me and my contract with the school district in closed executive session without my presence.

"I challenge the members of the board to find one statement made by me to the press as alleged in their statement. Also I was not in the executive session that Mrs. Adams refers to in her statement.

"As of the time of this statement neither Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Forrester, nor Mr. Schumacher have extended to me the courtesy of informing me of their al-

Trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District in Daly City want District Attorney Keith Sorenson to determine whether or not Supt. Frank L. Greenwood has breached his four-year contract.

The board in the same motion voted to break off negotiations for the superintendent's resignation.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, the trustee initiating the motion, disclosed the board had agreed to the negotiation and had met with Greenwood's legal counsel, City Atty. Al Polonsky.

Trustee Adams explained that Polonsky in an executive session on August 17 had offered to negotiate the "differences between the board's request for an immediate resignation and Mr. Greenwood's declared intent to remain to the conclusion of his four-year contract."

Polonsky had asked, Mrs. Adams said, that the board not advertise in any way the existence of such charges as might have been filed against the superintendent.

The board agreed, after con-

Jefferson Elementary District schools in Daly City will open on Sept. 13, but trustees and administrators still don't know what kind of pupil transportation, if any, it can provide.

It's not their fault and they were to review the problem and alternatives closely at a study session last night.

The trouble for the Daly City district, which buses 2,400 youngsters daily, using 13 Greyhound vehicles under contract, began in Hillsborough, according to JESD Supt. Frank L. Greenwood.

The Hillsborough district went to bid for its transportation. Greyhound was low bidder, but the second bidder insisted Greyhound does not meet state specifications as a school bus.

The district attorney's office has recommended that, until a court decision is rendered soon on subsequent litigation in the matter, the district not contract with Greyhound for this year, Greenwood said.

A section of the Education Code which apparently allows Greyhounds to be used for special activities, but not for transportation of pupils regularly to and from school has been cited, Greenwood said.

Greenwood has outlined three alternatives to trustees:

1.—Purchase coaches for the transportation of district pupils.

2.—Contract with another carrier whose buses will comply with the California education and vehicle codes.

3. —Eliminate transportation entirely, except for students in special education programs.

The district's present cost for transportation to Greyhound Lines, Inc., is $63,000, Greenwood said.

He said estimates for the establishment of a district fleet run as high as $456,800 to purchase equipment and make other capital outlays relative to maintenance and personnel and costs would increase even if another carrier could be hired.

Greenwood said that even though the state would reimburse the district for a portion of its transportation costs regardless of the carrier, JESD could expect an outlay of at least $100,000—a sum it does not have.

Freeway Project Favored in Environmental Report

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The quiet of Crestmoor Canyon in San Bruno may soon be shattered by an army of bulldozers, later to be replaced by traffic.

Despite attempts by conservationist groups, plans for construction of Highway 380 between San Bruno and Pacifica across some 4½ miles of open space are going ahead.

A recent environmental statement released by the State Division of Highways outlines the path the new multi-lane highway will follow as it traverses the relative wilderness of the San Francisco watershed and undeveloped mid-Peninsula area.

Chapter by chapter it takes into account various arguments presented by opponents of the planned highway and gives the State's reasoning on the "whys" of building the freeway rather then improving existing Sharp Park Road.

Fears that the natural environment will be upset by the proposed freeway, that even weather patterns will be altered by massive excavating, have been discounted by the report.

"This freeway doesn't change the planned commitment of the area's resources," the report declares. "It is an element in the plans of all the local jurisdictions and will permit the largest natural resource in the area, the watershed, to be more fully utilized to meet the community's needs."

Several times the importance of the freeway as an east-west thoroughfare is explained in the report.

Long-term population growth in the area coupled with the fact that many coastside residents work at International Airport points up the need of such a project, it is explained.

And Sharp Park Road with its hairpin curves and limited width is unquestionably one of the most dangerous stretches of roadway in the county, the study says.

Taking into account the magnitude of the project (the interchange at 380-101 will require asome 2½ million cubic yards of dirt alone) the construction through Crestmoor Canyon will take three years. Construction would start in 1977.

Dirt from the future roadway through the watershed would be brought down a "haul road" past the canyon starting in 1973.

By modifying present schedules, disruption in Crestmoor Canyon area will be limited to three years—rather than eight years as previously expected.

"The wind together with the grading and hauling could create a substantial dust problem for the adjoining communities," according to the study report.

Certain precautions will be taken to hold down the nuisances, the State promised.

A suggestion that a tunnel be made through Sweeney Ridge to the coast line was abandoned as too expensive.

The report indicated that cost of constructing a ¼-mile tunnel would be about $33 million—35 times more expensive than a graded freeway.

Alternatives to the adopted 380 route are few and dictated by topography of the area, the report noted.

Many of the adverse effects pointed out in the report were centered on the Crestmoor Canyon area with its apartments and schools.

The state calls these "unavoidable adverse environmental effects" and goes on to explain how each one will be handled.

Although this disruption may be necessary, the report quickly points out that when the dust has settled the people will have some 23,000 acres of open space in the watershed area and Crestmoor Canyon areas to enjoy.

But residents in the area will have to submit to an increased noise level, meanwhile, as high as 70 decibels.

Where these noise levels exceed the tolerable level, noise barriers will be erected, the report states.

Through it all the report promises to bring "increased development to the Coastal Region."

Some opponents of the plan say the cut made into Sweeney Ridge might affect San Bruno's weather.

A. F. Gustafson, meterorologist for the U.S. Weather Bureau, informed the Division of Highways that the "climate of the major part of San Bruno, westward to 280, should not be affected to any extent."

Effects from Highway 280 to Skyline Boulevard would be "negligible," while in the Riverside Park-Portola Highlands area "the proposed . . . cut 'hrough Sweeney Ridge would allow a somewhat stronger inflow of marine air than otherwise," the report said.

A Delay in Daly City Sr. Citizen Housing

There are now two proposals for low cost senior citizen housing before the San Mateo County Housing Authority.

Neither has yet seen fit to bring the proposals before the Daly City city council, site for both projects.

The developer of one of the projects, Bernard Hagan, president of the Hagan Construction Company of Oakland, has personally "made the rounds" of various civic and business groups in the city.

Having enlisted such prominent supporters as the Daly City and Westlake Senior Citizens' Clubs, the Mission Merchants' Association, and the North S.M. County League of Women Voters, Hagan has asked the city council to postpone an appearance before that body on two occasions.

A recent letter to the City from Hagan indicated the reason for this latest request for continuance is based on several questions that the developer feels must be cleared up beforehand.

Meanwhile, one group—the League of Women Voters—has taken on the responsibility of grinding our news releases concerning the proposed four story wooden structure.

Latest release, dated August 29, notes a motor caravan will drive away from the D.C. Senior Citizens Center, 901 Brunswick Street, at 11 a.m. to ballyhoo the merits of the complex proposed to be constructed at 169 First Avenue near the "bottom" of Mission Street.

A similar request to build a low income apartment complex for the elderly in the same area has been shelved by the Housing Authority pending the outcome of Hagan's project.

Housing Coordinator M. J. Griffiths on August 17 sent a memo to William Glenn Weman regarding Hagan's turnkey

Court Ruling, a 'Wait, See' Stance Here

North County's school districts are taking a "wait and see" attitude on the recent state Supreme Court decision on school financing.

The decision, which said that present taxation for school financing is unconstitutional, puts the onus on the state legislature to come up with some answers on where to get and how to distribute needed monies.

School district officials say that it has been common knowledge for years that the present system of financing has not been equitable.

Frank Greenwood, Superintendent of the Jefferson Elementary School District in Daly City, said the decision, if it stands, is bound to be a great savings to taxpayers in his district.

"These taxpayers have been paying through the nose," said Greenwood. "We're next to the poorest district in the county."

The poorest district of course is Laguna Salada, in Pacifica. Superintendent Jim Brien, who said he foresees no overnight change, called the decision a mandate to provide equalized educational opportunity.

Brien said the decision is a result of many low wealth districts pushing for reform, including a contingent of the 500 persons who flooded the capital in Sacramento back in March of 1969.

"We supported a bill this year that would have provided this concept, and it wasn't seriously considered," said Brien.

He, and most other school officials, feels the decision will be appealed. No one is sure where the appeal will come from, a rich school district or backed by large companies that face the

May the 'Brown Act' be Bent?

By FRANK La PIERRE

NEWS ANALYSIS

Should the strict letter of the law be adhered to by public officials in meeting on public business or can it be bent to suit a sitution?

Many feel the law, specifically the Ralph M. Brown Act, can and should be molded to fit varying demands on it.

The Ralph M. Brown Act was enacted to prevent elected and appointed bodies from meeting in "secret sessions" unless it was to discuss two major points: pending litigation and personnel matters.

Both reasons have been used by cities as loopholes to circumvent the law in many cases.

The preamble to the Brown Act explains in a single paragraph that the "People, in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control over the instruments they have created."

But municipal officials point to the Legislature and ask why that body does not have to follow such a binding law.

The legislature is not included in the Brown Act's restrictions.

The recent dispute in Brisbane over a closed door meeting of four councilmen two weeks ago to discuss "personnel matters" is unjustified City Attorney David Friedenberg feels.

Friedenberg contends the "spirit of the law," namely the Brown Act, was followed inasmuch as no decision on business discussed was reached.

Former mayor and present City Councilman Dr. S. J. Guardino, himself a participant in the meeting, accused his fellow official—Mayor Julius Stern, Councilman Jess C. Salmon and Councilman William E. Lawrence—of violating the act.

The meeting, according to Friedenberg, was held with his blessing because it involved a unique "personnel matter."

Brisbane had qualified for a large sum in Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds for eventual construction of sewers and related projects.

To supervise distribution of these funds the city needed an expert in the engineering field. This person or firm would be leged allegations, though they desire I resign because of those allegations. This continual vague reference to allegations void of any specifics concerning what they allege to be wrongdoing on my part is completely violative of general principles of fair play and our American heritage of due process.

"I welcome the opportunity for the District Attorney's office to investigate such allegations, whatever they may be, in connection with my contract, and hope that their office will at least communicate the nature of the allegations to me.

"If the board feels it is in an "intolerable position" then I feel that it is because of the board's own action.

"Mrs. Adams in her statement objected to my aggressively recommending a policy to which a majority of the board objected. It is my conviction that if one believes in a matter that it should be aggressively pursued.

"My attorney and I await the investigation with a little confusion. I am being investigated but I have no knowledge of the allegations which are the basis of the investigation. Whatever they may be, I feel that at best they are based on unfounded rumors, hearsay evidence and perhaps some personal antagonism to me. Regardless of what is occurring it is still my duty, and the duty of the dedicated principals and teachers of our district, to see that the best possible education is afforded the children of this district and to this end I shall continue to work aggressively."

Collett said:

"I, as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District, desire to let the people of the district know my feelings and reason for my joining the majority concerning the vote to refer certain allegations concerning Frank Greenwood to the District Attorney's office.

"I feel that the continual harassment by a majority of the board of Greenwood is detrimental to the prime consideration of our district, the education and welfare of our children.

"The majority undertook to act, apparently in a vindictive manner by not giving me any advance notice that the matter was to be discussed or voted upon. Mrs. Adams had a prepared statement available, but not for me. I was refused a copy of a list of allegations concerning Mr. Greenwood which they had prepared in writing. They proceeded to act without due consideration of the right of myself and Ed Tomasello, as elected representatives of the people of the district to be fully informed concerning all matters before the board.

sidering the cost of a lengthy trial in terms of money, time and effort, to drop the item from the agenda, she said.

The idea was to give Polonsky an opportunity to negotiate some advantage to his client's professional reputation, Mrs. Adams said.

Publicity on the subject prompted the majority of the board members to break off the talks, Mrs. Adams added.

"Subsequent statements to the press by both Mr. Polonsky and Mr. Greenwood, and Mr. Greenwood's statements to employees have placed the board in an intolerable position," she said. "It serves no good purpose for the board to honor its agreement to remain silent while Mr. Greenwood discusses the issue openly to his own advantage."

Mrs. Adams said that on July 13 and 27, in executive sessions of the five-man board, she and trustees Bill Schumacher and Beverly Forrester had discussed with Greenwood a number of his actions, "which had caused them to lose confidence in his intention, or even his willingness to competently advise them in matters relating to their official duties."

A policy on assignment of principals was the subject being discussed, she said, and Greenwood was "aggressively recommending" it to the board even though a deputy district attorney, and later the district attorney, had ruled that the board could not legally delegate its authority.

"As would ordinarily be expected," Mrs. Adams continued in her pre-motion statement, "the board's lack of confidence in any employee does not arise from one instance of inappropriate performance."

The request for his resignation was based upon a series of acts and omissions, "which a majority of the board considers to be illegal, insubordinate or incompetent," Mrs. Adams said.

No specific charges were made public Tuesday.

Only four of the trustees were present at the meeting. Ed Tomasello, who has been a staunch supporter of the superintendent in the past was reported on vacation in Oregon.

Greenwood said after the meeting that the board had not informed him of details.

"You know as much as I do about it," he said, declining further comment.

He said he might issue a formal statement at a later date.

The superintendent told the board just prior to its vote that he considered the action improper because the item did not appear on the agenda.

Asst. Dist. Atty. L. M. Summey, in the audience, said that the matter was on the executive session agenda so it was proper to advance it in public session at that time.

It was the board's first item of business, at 8:21 p.m., after meeting in executive session first with its representatives to the teachers' negotiating council and then with Summey.

S.S.F. Aides May Keep Mustaches, Long Hair

By BOB PETERSON

South San Francisco city workers won't have to cut their hair — yet.

Compliance with a city order to do so has been put off for an indefinite period.

City Manager Gale Dreisbach met on Aug. 24 with employe union representative Frank Gillis to discuss the matter.

Dreisbach said he would not implement the memo, that requires male employes to shave beards and keep hair and mustaches neatly trimmed, until definite tests have been made to determine whether excess hair hinders civil defense efficiency.

Assistant City Manager Larry Ross yesterday contacted the County Disaster Office, asking them to conduct tests necessary to determine whether long hair or a beard does prohibit the efficiency of a gas mask.

Ross said that should that office be unable to conduct tests the city would ask some other impartial party to do so.

"The city manager is not above modifying the memo if he is shown to be wrong," said Ross.

Gillis claimed no victory, nor indicated any satisfaction, other than the fact the effective date, which was September 1 for the park and street personnel he represents, has been extended.

The union representative appeared surprised the city is involved in an elaborate civil defense program.

The city just recently entered into a program of disaster preparedness through a University of Southern California program. The West Orange Library Civil Defense Office has previously been used as a training area and is stocked with civil defense supplies.

Ross said the city presently has 321 gas masks of various types available for use by employes. There are 265 full-time male employes on the city payroll, plus 66 part-time workers.

Training in civil defense techniques has been planned and scheduled prior to the end of this year for all male personnel, according to Ross.

So whether employes can keep their hair may be determined by how well the gas masks fit.

lease proposal and the proposal made by Philip B. Wallace of Campos Dorados Inc.

In it Griffiths asked that the Wallace project be temporarily shelved "pending approval of Daly City and guidance from HUD (Housing and Urban Development Agency) on processing."

"HUD has not indicated a procedure for approving units and all of the counties (sic) original 50 units are allocated," Griffiths wrote.

Griffiths went on to inform Weman, executive director of the Housing Authority, that "there is an indication of difficulties in approving Mr. Hagan's (housing) by the city."

Mayor Bernard Lycett denied any discussion had been made urging any council session — regular or study — on the matter of Hagan's proposal.

The city's Planning Commission approved the matter in a split 3-2 vote in spite of two opponents of the plan.

Discussions with some city officials has produced concern over construction of a four-story wood structure to be used for the elderly and the limited parking.

A four-story structure for any purpose made entirely of wood is in violation of the city's building codes. What makes the subject even more touchy is the occupants of the structure — the elderly.

Most officials will agree that "some arrangements" can be arrived at regarding a variance for parking.

The letter also points up the fact that both Hagan and wallace's proposed density "far exceed" that allowed by HUD.

"A reduction of units coupled with high land costs and meeting FHA standards may make both projects unfeasible," Griffiths memo explained.

Hagan wants to build 112 units while Wallace plans for 120 units. Both have agreed to meet FHA specifications in order to secure necessary private funding.

Considerable controversy has been generated by the two proposals, with two property owners in the immediate site area complaining the complex would get special treatment not afforded other builders in the city.

Councilman McRobert Stewart, appearing at a Mission Merchants' Association meeting last week, said the matter has been "blown all out of proportion."

Stewart said the city council was on record as favoring housing for senior citizens "but we're going to make sure it's done and done right.

"We want to be absolutely certain (such housing) is safe and sane before we okeh it for senior citizens," Stewart said.

And he contended the city council "is certainly not dragging our feet on this project."

The same meeting produced a prolonged statement of support for the senior citizens complex from Bonita Twombly, of Bay Property Managements, Rental Division of W. F. Batton & Company, Inc.

Hagan's proposal is now scheduled to be brought up at a public student session on September 7.

required to maintain necessary paperwork and oversee the actual contractors work on the job.

Several bids (Friedenberg prefers to call them "proposals") were reviewed by the city council in the secret meeting of August 16.

Although such business s deemed "public business" the city attorney felt the councilmen did not violate the law. They did not agree on, or agree to agree at any future meeting, on who would get the temporary post.

Friedenberg said that the "line was thin" regarding the meeting being held to discuss "personnel" as defined under the Brown Act, but he said he felt such a case merited the secret talk.

"After all, you wouldn't want the qualifications and shortcoming of these submitting proposals to be discussed in public?" he ventured

Earlier, Councilman Guardino had presented the name of City Public Works director Milton S. Hetzel for the job, but at this week's regular session, the council in a split vote chose the Research Engineering and Management Corporation to administer the HUD grant.

Earlier, Guardino said he informed his fellow councilmen during the meeting of two weeks ago that it was an illegal meeting and should be held in public.

material. It now comes out of his pocket.

Ironically, the Japanese are the most reticent about discussing the centers. "I'm getting good response, with the exception of the Japanese," said Ferguson of the project he began this spring.

There are exceptions. One is Mrs. Teiko Izustu, a secretary in the South San francisco Police Department. She was a victim of the period, and gave Ferguson a long interview on her experiences in the Topaz, Utah, relocation camp.

Another contributor to Ferguson's growing stacks of information is Wilson Zehr of Pacifica, grandson of the then commander of the Presidio of San Francisco.

"He has allowed me to copy all kinds of materials from the scrapbook his grandfather collected on the subject during World War II," said Ferguson. "I've got stacks of it."

Ferguson said that from what he has been able to derive, the feeling of those Japanese interned was not one of antagonism. "There was no bitterness or hate," he said.

"I just don't think they (the Japanese) want to talk about it. They want to wipe it out of their minds," said Ferguson. "Japanese history doesn't include relocation camps, and Japanese children don't hear about them from their parents."

He could be considered somewhat of an expert on the matter. He has a Japanese wife, whom he met while he was doing graduate work at the University of Tokyo eleven years ago. He married her in 1963 and they have one son.

Ferguson was working on a master degree in education through a year-long University of Southern California project.

The 40-year-old Ferguson taught for a short while, then went back to school to get his doctorate in jurisprudence.

"I took the law degree as a backup for administration," said Ferguson, who has taught eight years in the South San Francisco district.

Ferguson hopes to have the information on relocation centers for class use compiled by January. Once completed it will have to be approved by the trustees of the school board.

Just to insure that he will not be idle, Ferguson also has taken on another teaching assignment for the coming school year. It is called martial arts.

The boys taking the course as a physical education elective undoubtedly will more often refer to it as their judo-karate class.

Ferguson holds a black belt, and therefore is a master in that subject also.

Bomb Scare at IRS Office

The Army's Presidio bomb disposal squad was called to the Internal Revenue Service building on Palm Avenue, San Mateo, this morning, but no bomb was found.

San Mateo police, in a routine check, discovered what appeared to be new markings on a rear door of the headquarters at 2233 Palm, and a door ajar in the temporary headquarters.

Police immediately made a cursory check of the quarters, which have been used since the main office was blasted a week ago Sunday, and called Federal authorities shortly after 6 a.m.

Employes of the Federal offices waited on the sidewalk across the street before the bomb squad finished its search and departed, and then went to work.

Bay Region Crime Leader

Your chances of being a victim of a serious crime are approximately twice as great in the San Francisco Bay Area as the national average.

According to statistics in the latest annual crime report from the FBI, the national crime rate is 2,740 per 100,000 people, or 2.7 per cent.

In the San Francisco standard metropolitan statistical area the crime rate is 5.3 per cent. In California as a whole, the rate is 4.3 per cent, highest of any state in the nation.

By comparison, the crime rate in Wyoming is 1.7 per cent, and in Hawaii it is 3.3 per cent, in New York it is 3.9 per cent.

Within California, the San Francisco area, which includes San Mateo, San Francisco, Marin, and Alameda counties, also boasts one of the higher crime rates.

The San Francisco level of crime, 5,329 per 100,000 inhabitants, compares to 5,063 per 100,000 in Los Angeles; 3,877 per 100,000 in San Bernardino; 3,170 per 100,000, in San Jose, and 2,922 per 100,000 in San Diego.

Anaheim and Orange County have a crime rate of 3,586 per 100,000; Bakersfield has a rate of 3,674 per 100,000; and Fresno has 4.077 crimes per 100,000 residents.

Even more ominous are the crime trends shown in Hoover's report.

These show crime rate increases of 9 or 10 per cent for most major cities, but a crime rate increase of 14.5 per cent for suburban cities. All of San Mateo County's cities fall into that category.

Ragtime to Be Presented at S.F.'s Grace Cathedral

Ragtime, that uniquely San Francisc blend of fashion, music and dance, will take place at Grace Cathedral on Thursday and Friday, September 9 and 10 at 8:30 p.m. Music for this fifth Ragtime production will be supplied by Ali Akbar Khan, playing ancient Indian music, The Whole Polish Army, and The Voices of Christ Choir of Berkeley, a 67 member black gospel group.

Basd on the concept that new young designers very much need a showcase for their work, Ragtime is a free-flowing "happening" that mixes fashion, dance and music into an evening of exceptional entertainment.

SSF Investment Raises Queries

By DAVID THOMSON

How much money should an investment make if an investment should make money?

That's the $64,000 question concerning South San Francisco City Treasurer John J. Bonalanza's investment of $7 million of the city's money.

It was raised more than two months ago by a South San Francisco resident, Don Gamma, who called Bonalanza's investment policy "unintelligent and unprofessional."

Gamma charged that the city's return on its investments is only 5 per cent annually and that this is less than the amount garnered by many cities of South San Francisco's size.

Today, despite Gamma's attack and a subsequent defense by Bonalanza of the way he handles his job, the question remains unanswered.

It remains unanswered in part because no one seems to know precisely how much cities of South San Francisco's size receive for their investments — though the Peninsula-based Government Research Council, Inc., is surveying San Mateo County to determine the return that cities here get.

And it remains unanswered in part because Bonalanza's defense, presented to the South San Francisco City Council on July 6, did not respond fully to the charges that had been brought against him.

Bonalanza emphasized his handling of city bond issues in defending himself, bearing down less heavily on the investment issue Gamma had raised.

However, Bonalanza did say that his computations indicated a return of 6¾ per cent on fiscal year 1970-71 investments.

He did not substantiate his claim.

He did not respond to an assertion that he had put $3.7 million of the city's funds in a bank where he maintaned a rent-free office, was a stockholder, and once had been an officer.

Bonalanza is still closely tied to the bank. He continues to retain his rent-free office there and to remain a stockholder.

He insists that there is nothing wrong with this.

Bonalanza says that the office space is being provided on a temporary basis.

"As soon as its rented," he says, "I've got to move."

When, or if, that happens, the City Council presumably will be called upon to furnish him office space.

Bonalanza says that he deposits a disproportionate amount of the city's funds in a single bank because it provides him with good service.

"They keep me pretty well posted," he says.

But he concedes that he has no reason to believe that the service he might receive from other banks would be any less satisfactory.

Bonalanza says that there is no direct incentive to invest city funds at any particular bank.

"I get nothing more from one bank than from another," he says.

"This kind of situation," says Government Research Council Executive Director Robert Harrison, "even though it may be perfectly legal, does not tend to lend confidence to local government.

"People have to have confidence if government is to succeed," he says.

Harrison thinks that Bonalanza's apparently special relationship to a particular bank, in which the bank looks upon him so favorably, is not ideal.

"The people who I work with in local government who I respect just aren't that well liked by the banks," he says.

His organization's county-wide survey should begin to produce data in the near future; it should eventually make easier the task of comparing one city's investment return to that of another.

At present, it looks like some figures will be available in about a month.

Then, it should be possible to more clearly evaluate the quality of the job that is being done by any person in charge of investments for a particular city in San Mateo County.

Bonalanza says simply: "I try to get the most money I can for the city."

No Meeting of St. Clair, Grand Jury

County Supervisor Robert St. Clair showed up at a special meeting of the County Grand Jury August 24 but did not meet with the group, The Post learned.

St. Clair said earlier that he would seek a meeting with the jury to ask for reconsideration of its demand that he repay the county treasury for alleged misuse of county auto and telephone privileges.

Why the meeting was not held that night was nit revealed. The jury foreman, Albert B. Lindsey, and District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson refused to comment on the case.

Lindsey said the special jury session was called to make up for a meeting that was cancelled in July and was devoted to updating committee reports.

Last month the jury instructed Sorenson to figure out how much St. Clair owes the county and to submit a bill for the amount. If the bill is not paid, the jury told Sorenson to file a civil lawsuit to collect.

Sorenson said that he has not completed the computation and will not make it public when he does. He sid the matter will be handled privately at a conference among himself, St. Clair and the supervisor's lawyer, Joseph D. Goller.

New Mexico Crash Hurts San Brunans

Frank Jaska, 66, of 258 Acacia Avenue, San Bruno, was reported in good condition Thursday at Cibola General Hospital outside Grants, N.M., after being injured Monday morning in a three-car collision.

Jaska was due to retire this year from his post with the San Bruno park department. His wife is catering manager for Club Catering. The family was returning from a reunion in Houston, Tex.

According to a police report, Jaska was hospitalized after a car he was in struck the rear of another car which had first been struck by a third car traveling in the opposition direction.

The report said that a car driven by a 19-year-old California girl, Peggy White, on Interstate 40 crossed over a center divider and struck a car driven by John Wray, 20.

The report said that the car Jaska was in smashed into the rear of Wray's car.

The report said that Jaska was accompanied by his wife, Agnes, 56, his son Mike, 16, his daughter Catherine Hanson, 23, 509 Seventh Avenue, San Bruno, her son Paul, 3, and five-year-old James Burger — all of whom were treated at Cibola and released.

Woman Killed by Own Car

A young San Francisco woman was killed on Thursday in Daly City when she was ejected from her car and then run over by the vehicle, the Highway Patrol reports.

Anna Theresa Salamon, 24, a comptometer operator, was pronounced dead on arrival at Mary's Help Hospital following the 2:30 a.m. accident on Junipero Serra Freeway just north of Eastmoor Avenue.

Highway Patrolmen L. F. Rollin and Rich Kosta reported that Miss Salamon was southbound on the freeway when for some reason she applied the brakes of the 1963 sedan.

There were 241 feet of skid marks leading to the curbing where the car became airborne for a distance of 75 feet, its rear bumper clipping a guard rail, then crashing into a steep embankment, overturning and plunging back onto the roadway, Rollin said.

In the process, the patrolman reported, Miss Salamon was ejected from the car and most of her clothing ripped off in the process. Her body, found on the embankment, had a tire mark across the chest, Rollin said. Some of her clothing was found wrapped around the bumper of the car.

D.C. Man Faces Suit

Paul Astry, individually and doing business as Sierra Radio & TV of Daly City, has been sued in the U.S. District Court on charges of violating the federal wage-hour law.

The U.S. Department of Labor claimed the firm had violated overtime provisions of the law, and asked the court to order the defendant to obey the law in future, and pay back wages allegedly due twenty-five employees.

Investigations leading to the charge were directed by John M. Silver, Wage-Hour Division Area Director, San Francisco.

Temporary Principal

Miss Marjorie Tobias who resigned unexpectedly as principal of the Vista Mar Elementary School in Daly City a week after school closed for the summer, has been hired as a temporary principal at George Washington Elementary School in the same Jefferson Elementary School District.

The district is screening applications to fill the vacancy, created by her resignation and the subsequent reassignment of others.

Miss Tobias had been Vista Mar principal since 1957 and a teacher and administrator in JESD since 1926.

Coast Fire

When Pacifican Obery Hill's 1966 model car slipped off a jack, puncturing its gas tank, fumes from the leaking gasoline were ignited by the pilot light of a water heater.

The 9:10 p.m. blaze caused an estimated $150,000 damage to the Hill home at 663 Foothill in the Fairmont region, according to Fire Capt John Murphy.

S.S.F. Chief Praises Those 'Involved'

By BOB PETERSON

South San Francisco Optimist Club's first opportunity to honor three local heroes also gave Police Chief Sal Rosano a chance to expound some of his philosophies.

Honored at the luncheon Aug. 34 was Gerald Segalas Jr., 12, Mrs. Elda Jekot and Mrs. Norma Boike, for their actions in saving the lives of 4-year-olds Barry Green and Troy Lind.

The young lads had locked themselves in an abandoned refrigerator on August 8. Segalas administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Barry.

"Most of the publicity these days seems to be the sort that depresses," said Rosano after presenting the awards. "It is nice to reward those who are truly doing something for their fellow man."

Rosano struck hard at the point people should help other people, saying it is everyone's responsibility to prevent crime.

He said the South San Francisco Police Department now utilizes about 90 per cent of its force on preventive police measures. This includes the saturation of the community with police cars.

"The need for this saturation grows as people of the community fail to assist us," said Rosano. "If you ignore your responsibility, we'll have to have a policeman on every block," he said.

"For years the anger of the community directed at the police department should instead be directed to the judicial system," said Rosano. "It is in a mess. It hasn't changed for years."

Making reference to long lunch hours and continual postponements that require his officers to make repeated appearances on the same case, Rosano said, "They'll inconvenience anyone anytime to suit themselves.

"The police can do their darnedest to bring someone in, but unless someone else on the other end of the line knows what they are doing, it's not going to work. And it (the judicial system) is not working," said Rosano.

The chief, qualifying his statements by saying that this doesn't mean all judges are bad, added that the radicalism of the judicial system has permeated the juvenile courts.

"At times a juvenile will demand defense when the parents don't want an adversary proceeding," said Rosano. "The result is that the youth has placed himself in the adult category, many times to the detriment of the juvenile."

Mountain Development

SSF Most Likely Prospect?

By BOB PETERSON

Indications Thursday night were that South San Francisco is in the driver's seat for development of San Bruno Mountain, as far as owner Crocker Land Company is concerned.

Although Crocker's project director, Frank Calton, left the door open, he said he believed Daly City had bowed out.

"They (Daly City) allege we've been secretive and made appearances before public groups before we meet in back rooms with their councilmen. This has caused them to be upset," said Calton.

He said he already has had a six-hour meeting with South San Francisco City Manager Gale Dreisbach, and that his firm has been holding meetings since April in the North County.

"We've decided to let the people in on our planning," said Calton. "It's only in the last week that we've developed answers (to many previously unanswered questions). "There'll be more refinements as we go along," he promised.

Councilman Patrick Ahern, said, "I don't think Daly City has completely given up the idea (of annexation of the mountain and its subsequent development)." He asked if it was definitely down to the point where South San Francisco and Brisbane were the only two cities vying for the mountain.

"We don't want to bargain one city against another," said Calton.

With Daly City apparently out of the picture, Ahern suggested that Brisbane is not in a financial position to take the mountain, leaving South San Francisco the likely prospect.

Ahern, an alternate to LAFCO (Local Agency Formation Commission) said he didn't think LAFCO would see Brisbane as able to handle the mountain's development.

LAFCO's "sphere of influence" hearings are scheduled for November.

One vocal Brisbane spokesman was present. He was Mike Kaiser, a member of the city's park commission. Kaiser, however, stressed that he was not speaking as an official of the city, rather as an independent citizen.

He said he thought that three out of five of the Brisbane councilmen would vote to take the whole mountain rather than agree to any piecemeal development.

"They're afraid that if they do not take it all (or lose it) the other community (that gets it) would control development and do whatever development they wanted. Brisbane would have no say on what goes there."

Kaiser said a city council has a lot to gain in prestige if the mountain is annexed. "South San Francisco would have a large population and it would mean a lot of prestige to serve on the city council," he said.

"I feel the people of the North County should have a chance to vote on it," added Kaiser. "I think they should have been given the opportunity last June."

At that time the board of supervisors scratched from the ballot a proposal on a recreation area for the saddle of the mountain.

Kaiser also charged that "the county supervisors are holding hands with developers and will give them anything they want." Kaiser had an armful of maps, studies, brochures and newspaper clippings on the history of the mountain.

Asked what his firm would do if no city decided to take on the task of development, Calton said, "I honestly don't know. If that happens I'd have to develop an answer for it."

Peak Plans Detailed by Crocker in South S.F.

Future development of San Bruno Mountain was described in colorful relief map detail Thursday in South San Francisco.

Crocker Land Company's project director for the proposal, Frank Calton, used maps showing wind patterns, road patterns, housing and commercial development ideas, plus open space, park and recreation uses.

Calton said population projections had been set at 38,000 for the 3600-acre Visitacion Rancho property by 1996. And more than 2100 acres are set aside for open space.

"Last week we came to these conclusions. "We call them our aspirations," said Calton, speaking as a guest of South San Francisco's civic organization Citizens for Responsible Government.

"We're not following the policy of any city or elective body," said Calton. "And our proposals are still subject to refinement." He said the development should mean "prestige" for the county.

One relief map showed various weather areas on the mountain. Another indicated there are eight different drainage directions off the mountain. Drainage patterns has been one of South San Francisco's chief concerns.

According to Calton, his firm has had numerous meetings with the county staff on adequacy of traffic patterns Crocker has suggested.

Calton said the proposal is to construct a bus feeder system from the mountain to the Daly City BARTD station. He said this could possibly lead to a transit tie from Daly City to Brisbane and then south down the Peninsula.

The project director also said his firm would be happy to cooperate with South San Francisco and the county to extend Hillside Boulevard to the Bayshore.

Most of the population on the mountain would be located on the Daly City side. Calton indicated there are thoughts about the possibility of highrise office buildings in the saddle of the mountain.

Commercial use is now slated along the Bayshore side, including retail, offices and hotels.

Calton said that as of February his firm began a five-year program of reforestation on the mountain, resulting in 20,000 new trees over that period.

The open space, park and recreation portion of the plan was presented by landscape architect Doug Baylis, retained by the Crocker firm.

Teachers at SMJC Asking Salary Help

The American Federation of Teachers Local 1493 of the San Mateo Junior College District has urged the Board of Trustees to investigate every means possible to allocate budgeted salary raises during the new fiscal year.

In a prepared talk before the board Wednesday night at the College of San Mateo, Local President Dr. Patrick Manning of Canada College said, "Since valid 1971-72 contracts are in effect for teachers and other employes and since the budget includes allocations for salary increases, we expect that the board will explore every legal and procedural avenue which would enable step increases and cost-of-living increases to be paid to all district employes."

District Chancellor Clifford Erickson responded by noting that he and the San Mateo County District Attorney's office have been seeking some of the same answers as the union. He said the DA is preparing a response at this time.

It was also pointed out that there appears now to be a chance that teachers — at least some of them — will be granted salary increases because of federal opinions on the matter.

A report from Washington late Wednesday indicated that teachers hired as of July 1 and who are available to work a 12-month year would be qualified under the wage-price freeze to receive their raises as scheduled.

Some teachers and other employes, it was noted, have been hired as of September 1 in many districts in this state. As Manning and the chancellor both pointed out, this means that district employes are working on two distinct sets of salary schedules.

This and other questions relating to the freeze will have to be answered by the DA's office and by the federal government's Office of Economic Preparedness, Erickson said.

Trustee Carl Ward said the board hopes to be able to grant those salary raises and, he added, "I feel this is the way it's going to be worked out. It's not right to have two sets of salary schedules. In fact, I didn't even realize that this was the case here until tonight."

Trustee Robert Tarver agreed in principle with Ward's remarks and said it appears as if the government is forming policy as it goes along in its effort to curb inflation.

A full report on the district's salary situation is expected at the next board meeting.

Bruno Peak Grass Fire

A fire possibly started by youngsters burned 16 acres of grass on San Bruno Mountain near South San Francisco Friday night before being extinguished by Division of Forestry firemen.

Fire Apparatus Engineer George Criswell said that the fire started on the Crocker estate near Randolph Street and covered area between Randolph and Airport Boulevard. Firemen were called at 9:30 p.m. Six men and two fire trucks were at the scene for 2½ hours.

Criswell said a gathering of youngsters at the scene were applauding, whether it was for the efforts of firemen or for the fire wasn't determined.

The blaze was the latest of a series of San Bruno Mountain grass and brush fires which annually plague the Division of Forestry during the dry summer season.

2 Arrested in San Bruno

San Bruno police arrested two men early Wednesday who allegedly were in the process of robbing LaDora Liquors, 604 San Bruno Avenue.

Booked were Mark Alan Pray, 22, of Carmichael, and John Charles Hicks, 24, of Sacramento.

Police said Sgt. Robert Timko and Officer Steve Cottini came

Drugs Stolen

An undetermined amount of narcotics and hypodermic kits have been reported stolen in a South San Francisco burglary sometime between Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Police said entrance to Anchor Drug, 391 Grand Ave., was gained through a skylight.

Mayors Worried Over Big Govt.

The San Mateo County Council of Mayors Friday agreed that the cities had better take a closer look at what is going on in Sacramento, or they might find out that some of their prime areas of concern had been taken away from them.

And taxpayers, one noted, might find a lot of new taxes suddenly confronting them.

The mayors, meeting at the Fork 'N' Cork Restaurant, San Mateo, for their monthly dinner discussed some of the following questions:

1. Would present bills before the Legislature create a new level of government?

2. Would this mean loss of control by cities on such key matters as transportation, highways, development, parks, open space, environment and conservation?

3. Would such formation of government above the cities, on a Bay Area basis, mean that cities would lose power to adopt rules and regulations and to implement plans in each areas, and, in fact, not be allowed to pass conflicting ordinances?

4. Are things moving so fast that cities and the local taxpayers are merely reacting, rather than thinking positively and initiating their own programs with the Legislature?

5. Are the matters now so complicated that the cities are finding themselves out of step at times not only with the Association of Bay Area Governments but with the League of California Cities?

Wayne McFadden, council legislative chairman, charged that "we react rathe than present positive programs." He urged that the cities develop staff assistnce to not merely react, but to set forth specific needed legislation.

"I am most disturbed with the pace at which legislation changes," he added. McFadden said that next month's council program will deal with the entire question. Grace McCarthy, Pacifica, and meeting chairman, added that she felt the next meeting of the Council would be important.

The group was addressed by Ralph Anderson of Sacramento, representing the League of California Cities. Anderson told the Council that all large cities now employ staff representation at Sacramento and that a number of groups like their own also have staff at the state capitol, or are developing some such representation.

He asked the mayors to consider just what they would want out of their staff or representative and to consider whether they want direct action on certain bills, a few specifics, on broad programs, or informational action. "You must decide what your goals are," he said.

The League will work with any representative or staff sent over, he said. He explained that present technique is for the League and the cities working on certain bills in the Legislature is to hold strategy sessions, then divide up the senators or affected representatives among them.

Anderson went into detailed discussion of the bills before the Legislature concerning cities.

In other action, the council supported its nominating committee and elected three mayors, two police chiefs and two city manager representatives to the Criminal Justice Planing Board, a county organization.

Those selected are Mayors Robert Bury, Redwood City; John Condon, San Mateo; and James S. O'Connor, Millbrae; chiefs Victor Cizanckas, Menlo Park and Salvatore V. Rosano, South San Francisco; and city manager Charles Allen, San Carlos, and Dave Rowe, Daly City.

The council resolved to notify the county of its pleasure that a methadone pilot program has been put in motion, and some members expressed the hope that part of this program will be extended to the north county.

The council discussed a response to the County Managers Association and agreed to have a member appear at 10 a.m. September 1 to speak on the state proposal to relinquish control of El Camino Real. Some members noted that it could mean that some cities might not keep it up to the uniform standards of others.

Secret Talks Charged by Brisbane Official

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Three members of the Brisbane City council have been accused of holding an illegal secret meeting by former Mayor Dr. S. J. Guardino.

Councilman Guardino said the meeting involved Mayor Julius Stern and two fellow councilmen, William E. Lawrence and Jess G. Salmon.

Neither Mayor Stern nor Councilman Salmon were available for comment.

According to Guardino the closed door session was called during a regular meeting some two weeks ago purportedly to discuss a "personnel" matter.

It turned out to be a discussion of competitive bidders for maintenance of a Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant amounting to several hundred thousand dollars.

Contacted last week, Brisbane city attorney David J. Friedenberg said he had advised the council the meeting was in accordance with the Ralph M. Brown Act, the law under which public bodies may meet behind closed doors away from public scrutiny.

Councilman Guardino has threatened to pursue the matter and charged the three elected officials with violation of the law.

He asked Friedenberg to submit the charges to the District Attorney. However, the city attorney said he declined "until I am so informed by a majority of the city council."

The City Attorney said he felt the council was justified in calling the meeting to discuss the six or seven proposals received by the city for the HUD job.

"I know they made no decision (in the closed meet)," Friedenberg said.

Asked what went on inside the secret session Friedenberg said he "wasn't certain."

The meeting was called to "discuss the qualifications of the bidders" he later said.

Guardino said he had attempted to stop the meeting after he realized what was going on.

"I told (the other councilmen) that what they were discussing should be brought out at a public meeting and it was not proper for an executive session," Guardino said.

Why hadn't he brought out the complaint at the time of the meeting two weeks ago, Guardino was asked?

"I wasn't going to say anything unless they brought the matter up again. They did at Monday's meeting," Guardino replied.

The Research Engineering and Management Corporation was named to administer the fund at the meeting Monday.

Guardino had earlier insisted that city Public Works Director Milton S. Hetzel be awarded the contract. Hetzel was low bidder on the contract.

According to one city hall source Hetzel understood he would have to resign his post with the city to accept the contract and he was prepared to do so.

Guardino's motion naming Hetzel for the contract died for lack of a second.

Councilman Lawrence had "absolutely nothing" to say today about the charges.

He feared making a "contradictory statement." He urged that Mayor Stern be contacted regarding "the personnel meeting."

The Brown Act states that closed door meetings can be held only to discuss pending litigation or "personnel matters." Personnel refers to city employes or officers."

Gun Death Cause Probed

Services were held Monday for a South San Francisco car repair center owner as the coroner's office continued to probe the cause of his death.

The body of Gerhard Walter Schaefer, of 271 Allen Drive, was found by members of his family. According to police, he was killed by a bullet frim a rifle held beneath his chin. The coroner's office, however, was unable to tell if Schaefer killed himself or if his death was accidental. There was no note found, and there appeared to be no motive for a suicide, according to the coroner.

His wife Marguerita and two sons, Hans and Pierre survive. He was born in Leipzig, Germany, and lived here ten years.

He owned Gerhard's German Car Service, 872 El Camino Real. Services were held at Larson's Garden Mortuary in South San Francisco. Interment was at Skylawn.

Welfare Recipient Wins Rent Appeal

Presiding Superior Judge Melvin E. Cohn has issued an order prohibiting a Siuth San Francisco realtor frim refusing to rent housing to welfare recipients solely because a person is on welfare.

The preliminary injunction was requested by the Legal Aid Society of San Mateo County on behalf of the Welfare Rights Organization after a Daly City welfare recipient said she was refused rental of an apartment after it was learned she was a welfare recipient.

Named defendant in the suit was John F. Donnellan, South San Francisco realtor, and 2000 John Doe real estate agents, brokers and associations.

It was alleged that in assertedly refusing to rent an apartment to Grace Theofanides, mother of two children, because she was on welfare, Donnellan violated the woman's civil rights.

Judge Cohn noted in issuing the preliminary injunction today that the allegations were uncontradicted by the defendant.

Donnellan's attorney, Vernon Humber, contended in court that a realtor has a reasonable right to inquire into a person's means before renting housing to him.

Judge Cohn said he had no argument with that, but directed that refusal to rent on the sole basis a person is on welfare is illegal. He directed that the Legal Aid Society post a $250 bond to protect Donnellan against any financial loss resulting from the suit.

The preliminary injunction will remain in effect until trial of the case is held.

Student Insurance Bid Awarded

The San Mateo Junior College District Board of Trustees Wednesday awarded a $52,000 bid for student accident insurance to Sanders and Sullivan Insurance of San Jose.

The Santa Clara County firm's bid was $19,500 lower than the next lowest bidder.

Students at the district's three colleges will now be covered for a wide range of accidents when they start back to school next month.

The coverage, which each day student purchases for $3.75 per semester, will include:

—Hospital fees paid in full.

—Half of all private nursing fees.

—X-ray and laboratory fees paid in full.

—Physicians services paid in full.

—Surgical services paid in full.

—Outpatient prescription drugs paid in full.

—Dental care of up to $150 for each tooth or up to $500 when more than one tooth is injured.

The plan also includes coverage for athletes playing for any of the district's teams.

Benefits for them include: A blanket medical expense of a maximum of $10,000; a maximum of $500 for dental care; and, a maximum of $10,000 for accidental death or dismemberment.

There are a number of minor exclusions in all parts of the plan.

One of the concerns of the trustees was the matter of when the student will be actually covered.

S.J. Couple Terrorized on Bayshore

Two San Jose residents apparently were terrorized merely because they were black, Redwood City police reported today.

Officer John Hansel said the reports given by Louis Howard, 29, a mechanic, and Rita Lee Greenwood, 33, a Canada College student, were confirmed by four witnesses.

Howard said he was driving on Bayshore Freeway near Whipple Avenue in Redwood City when a pick-up truck pulled alongside and the two occupants made obscene remarks and said such things as "all you niggers should be killed."

Howard said he stopped his car and got out armed with a knife. One of the men got out of the pick-up with a gun, and ordered him to drop his knife. Then the man, described as about 25 to 28 years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighing about 184 pounds, grabbed Howard and threw him across the hood of his car. The man held the gun against his head and said he was going to shoot him, Howard reported.

At one point the second occupant of the vehicle, described as 21 to 25 6-feet, 2-inches tall, 195 pounds and with brown hair told Miss Greenwood he had a shotgun and was going to shoot her.

Several other vehicles pulled up, however, and the assailant jumped back into the pick-up and sped off.

Crime Rate Keeps Increasing

Crime continues to increase, and at a greater rate than population growth. That's the gist of the latest annual report from the FBI.

The 20-page report was announced today in Washington D.C. by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and by U.S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

The report reveals that in seven standardized crime categories there was an increase of 11 per cent during 1970, over the previous year.

Although this was less of an increase than 1969's 12 per cent, and less than 1968's 17 per cent crime growth, a 10-year total showed an expansion of 144 per cent in rate of crime, compared to a 14 per cent growth in population, since 1960.

Crimes ranging from murder to auto theft actually increased 176 per cent in the 10 years.

Despite the number of spectacular killings occuring in the past several years, Hoover's report said crimes against property had actually increased faster. The increase in violent crimes was 156 per cent in 10 years, the growth in thefts and burglaries, 10 per cent.

Hoover said that the crime rate index indicates a rate of risk each American citizen has of becoming a victim of a serious crme, during the year.

Although the crime rate is not given for each city in the country, it is stated for several "standard metropolitan statistical areas," including San Francisco.

Taking in San Mateo, San Francisco, Marin, Alameda and Contra Costa counties, the local statistical area crime rate indicates a Bay Area citizen had a 5.3 per cent chance of being a crime victim, in 1970.

There were 5,329 serious crimes for each Bay Area resident, Hoover's report says.

Among those were 258 murders, and cases of manslaughter, 1,334 forcible rapes, 10,813 robberies, 7,032 assaults, 67,282 burglaries, 49,237 cases of theft of property worth more than $50, and 29,759 auto thefts.

Hoover noted that these were reported crimes only, and said there are many others which are not reported to police.

The annual report is made up from information provided to the FBI by local police departments.

It shows that murderers are the criminals most likely to be caught.

In murder cases, 6 per cent of the criminals are arrested, Hoover reported. In manslaughter, the arrest rate is 81 per cent, in assau't it is 65 per cent, and in forcible rape, 56 per cent.

Crimes against property are solved much less often. Only 29 per cent of robberies are cleared by arrest, 19 per cent of all reported burglaries, 18 per cent of thefts, and 17 per cent of auto thefts.

Hoover said that although the number of crimes, and the crime rate, are both higher in large cities, there are many other factors ionvolved in the causes of crime.

Such things as climate, seasonal conditions, density of population, public attitude toward law officers, and composition of the population according large number of these crimes."

Although the number of arrests for the seven standardized to race, age, and sex, also have an effect on crime.

Violent crimes occur most often during August, killing of police officers happens most frequently in January and June, and on Friday nights, Hoover's reports said.

Murders occur most often in the South, and most often by handgun. Killings by stabbing occur most frequently in the North Central states. Family killings occur most often in the West, as do murders by known felons.

"Most murders," the report states, "are committed by relatives of the victim, or persons acquainted with the victim," indicating that taking a life is often a most personal crime done for highly private reasons. Because of this, said Hoover, "police are powerless to prevent a crimes was up 87 per cent in 10 years, Hoover said, the rate of clearing crimes by arrest was down 34 per cent.

Some crimes have increased many fold during the past decade. Bank robberies were up 409 per cent, robberies of chain stores increased 389 per cent, robberies of gas stations grew by 230 per cent, and robberies at a residence were up by 213 per cent.

Hoover noted an increase, also, in drug related crimes, though these are not included in the FBI's list of the standard seven. In ten years, he said, arrests for violation of drug law violations increased by 741 per cent.

Bomb Scare at Bus Depot

SAN FRANCISCO — More than 150 night workers were stranded at the Greyhound Bus terminal here late Monday night and early this morning because of a bomb scare. No bomb was found.

"A nervous sounding man" telephoned the 7th Street terminal at 11:45 p.m. and said a bomb was set to go off at 1 a.m., said Greyhound spokesman Jack Kaplan.

All bus traffic was stopped and the terminal evacuated and searched by security guards and city police. This meant opening the 300 baggage lockers, inspecting all buses in the station, rest rooms, trash containers and anything else where a bomb might be hidden, Kaplan said.

The warning came just as night workers were arriving to take buses home.

$10,000 Loss in S.S.F. Fire

Authorities said the blaze, of undetermined origin, was noticed about 4:43 p.m. by Mrs. Raymond Gallagher, of 110 Belmont Avenue.

Assistant Fire Chief Al Brauns said Mrs. Gallagher opened the door from the house to the garage and saw the fire. He said she immediately got other members of the family out of the house. No one was injured.

It took firemen about 10 minutes to contain the blaze. Some water and minor fire damage was done to the house where it connects with the garage.

Southern California Trip For the Richard Ballettos

Honeymooning in Disneyland and points south are Mr. and Mrs. Richard George Balletto who were married Saturday afternoon at the United Methodist Church in Burlingame.

The bride is the former Sherry Jean Classon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Classon of Fort Myers, Fla. who traveled to the West Coast for the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. George Balletto of Daly City are the benedict's parents.

The newlyweds, who said their vows before the Rev. Carl Stocking, will make their first home in San Bruno. The bride is an alumna of Fort Myers Senior High School and Virginia Intermont College and the benedict is a Jefferson High School graduate.

For the four o'clock service Sherry wore a floor length ivory and satin gown with a fitted bodice which featured a scoop neckline and long fitted sleeves. Peau d'ange beaded lace detailed her neckline, bodice and sleeves and encircled the border of her full, detachable train.

Sherry carried a cascade bouquet of white catalea orchids.

Beverly Classon, her sister's maid of honor, wore a yellow brocade taffeta gown sashed with yellow satin ribbon. Identical gowns were also worn by the bridesmaids who included Kathleen Foran of San Mateo, Shauna Foust of South Lake Tahoe and Linda Balletto of Daly City, Richard's sister.

The honor attendant's flowers were light yellow and white baby roses and the secondary attendants carried two-toned yellow baby roses and baby's breath.

Best man duties were performed by Roy Beecher of San Mateo and Stephen Drago of San Mateo, the benedict's cousin, seated guests with Edward Beecher and Harold Shurgin, both of Daly City.

The New Southern Restaurant was the setting for the reception which followed.

The bride has one brother, David Classon.

Each classroom will be represented by different booths and parents and faculty members will be helping throughout the day. There will be a circus theme and the festivities will begin with a costume parade that is open to all children in Millbrae.

Skill and chance games will be played and there also will be a "mystery booth" of all new or unused items, a White Elephant booth and an arts and crafts booth.

A snack bar will be open throughout the day.

Wilson-Clark Nuptials

White gladioli, lavender and [illegible] carnations and stock [illegible] with baby's breath filled [illegible] baskets on the altar at St. [illegible]'s Catholic Church today [illegible] Patti Lynn Wilson and [illegible]as Michael Clark exchanged vows.

The Rev. Larry Purcell conducted the 12:30 service which was followed by a reception at the Crystal Springs Golf Club. At the reception site, white gladioli, lavender carnations and white pom-pons were arranged at the buffet table.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Earl Wilson Jr. of Pacifica. She was graduated from Scottsdale High School in Scottsdale, Ariz. Her bridegroom is an alumnus of Aragon High School who is now attending the College of San Mateo and Canada College. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Clark of San Mateo.

For her wedding Patti selected an ivory peau de soie Empire gown with two self bows at the waist and heavy lace re-embroidered with tiny pearls at the skirt panels and around the neckline. Her bridal gown also was fashioned with a formal, detachable train and an illusion veil secured by lace petals and pearls.

Patti carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds and baby's breath.

Debbie Sue Wilson served as her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Thomas C. Donnelly (Vicki Wilson) of Olean, N.Y., another sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Janet and Judi Clark, sisters of the benedict, and Aeryn Michel Donnelly, the bride's niece, was the flower girl.

Each of the attendants was gowned alike in lavender peau de soie costumes with white and lavender lace details and tiny puffed sleeves. They completed their look with matching large brim hats and carried French Colonial bouquets. Aeryn's flowers were arranged in a white basket tied with lavender ribbons.

Best man duties were performed by John Gallick and Tim Clark, the benedict's brother, Pat Corsetti and Michael Wilson, Patti's brother, seated the guests.

Mrs. Wilson took her place in the family pew with a beige worsted silk dress with a beige lace sleeveless coat. She added bronze orchids to her outfit.

A coral chiffon costume with matching accessories was worn by Mrs. Clark who pinned a white orchid corsage to her outfit.

Guests at the wedding included Dr. Gabe Wilson of Malibu and Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McMorris of Morro Bay, the bride's uncles; and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Dougan of Kenwood, the maternal grandparents of the benedict.

After greeting friends and relatives the newlyweds departed for a wedding tour of Lake Tahoe. For the trip Patti changed to a white lace pantsuit to which she pinned a white and lavender orchid corsage. Upon return she and Thomas will live in San Mateo.

A Capitola Wedding for Couple

Resurrection Church in Capitola was the setting Sunday for the marriage of Philinore C. Irao of Greenfield and Delano. K. Lota of San Bruno. The newlyweds are now honeymooning in Las Vegas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pelagio R. Irao of Kalibo, Aklan, Philippines. Mr. and Mrs. Pacifico A. Lota of Alcantara, Romblon, Philippines are the benedict's parents.

The newlyweds received felicitations after the service at Fjords Smorg-ette in Capitola. They will make their first home in Watsonville.

Philinore was escorted to the altar by Fred Irao. She said her vows in a traditional white Filipino gown detailed with satin embroidery and beading.

Maid of honor was Virginia M. Bohuland who wore a yellow satin gown. An apple green gown was worn by Mrs. Llane Militar who served as the principal sponsor with Ernie Cortes.

Mrs. Izetta L. Scott and Mrs. Eva A. Lota wore yellow embroidered and beaded gowns. They shared secondary sponsor's duties with Michael Scott and Tony I. Aurello.

Other attendants included Dante S. Lota, the best man, Maribel I. Irao, the flower girl, and Francisco R. Irao Jr. and Ian Lota Scott, coin bearer and ring bearer respectively.

The bride was graduated from Philippine Normal College in Manila where she earned her bachelor of science degree in education. She is a teacher in the Greenfield Union School district.

Tongan Visitor Honored at Party

The San Bruno home of Mrs. Vesta B. O'Grady was the setting for the dinner she hosted for Mrs. Va'etapu 'Ahome'e Mulikiha'amea, sister of Her Royal Highness Halaevalu Mata'aho, queen of the Tonga Islands.

Mrs. Mulikiha'amea came to the Bay Area after visiting her sister in Hawaii. This was her first visit to the mainland and the dinner in her honor was co-hosted by Mrs. Longo Kolokihakaufisi, also of Tonga. Mrs. Kolokihakaufisi, who has been staying at the O'Grady home for the summer, had Mrs. O'Grady at her home during two of her visits to the South Pacific.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Saffing and Mrs. Manu Tu'ufanga Langilangi who played Tongan music.

Among those present were the Harold Thornburgs of Belmont, Mrs. O'Grady's sister and brother-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Lausi'i Tu'itavake, Mr. and Mrs. Tevita Langilangi, Tasi Kefu and Viliami Pahulu.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Sione Moala, Hausia Talanoa, Mrs. Funaki Talanoa, 'Ofa Lavulo, Richard Koeberer, Foua Moala, Feleti Palavi and Fononga Tuipeatau.

A Long-Time Favorite Torres Montara Beach

Frank and Fannie Torres are your genial hosts at Torres Beach restaurant in Montara, just south of Devil's Slide on Coast Highway One. This indefatigable pair is a long-time favorite to diners from all over the Bay Area, and they are best known for their South American mouth-watering delicacies . . . Still drawing appreciative crowds to Hyatt House Burlingame is Three's Company, a versatile trio performing nightly, Tuesdays through Saturdays in Hugo's Bistro. Earlier in the evening (5 p.m. to 9 p.m.;, Suzie Gilner presides at the pianobar . . . Joe Piccinini, maitre'd at Oreste's, keeps his menu up to date by making regular trips to Europe and bringing back new recipes to enhance his menu of Italian food, prepared Tuscany style. The atmosphere here is one of old world charm with fine Italian paintings adorning the walls, plus crockery and brassware . . . After a two-week vacation, the Sound Barrier returned to Deejay's in Belmont. They are totally "on the scene and turned on" to what is happening. Look for this group to soon head for the Nevada entertainment circuit.

TRAMP, featuring Terry Allen (center), opens September 8 at The Putter, Burlingame Plaza. Originally from the Midwest, the group broke all house records during several recent stints. Leader Terry Allen was formerly with the Bowery Boys. The group will be performing nightly, Wednesdays through Sundays, at this pop spot.

Lionel Hampton Among Fans

Drummer Lionel Hampton, one of the greats of the music world, was among the fans at Finocchio's, and renewed a long-time friendship with drummer Dave Black of the club's fine band. Black was with Duke Ellington's orchestra for years. Hampton said the new revue, which is produced by Joel Nobel, formerly with the great Josephine Baker in Paris, is the best he's ever seen at Finocchio's. . . . An Italian sauce that is unbeatable can be savored daily at Romano's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Owned and operated by Enrico Romano, a long-time resident of the Coastside, this restaurant specializes in not only full-course family-style dinners but in pizzas as well. . . . Flaming gourmet dishes, once reserved for the privileged few, are now enjoyed by the appreciative many in the elegant Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's Steakery, in downtown San Francisco. Among the many gourmet creations cooked to order and flamed at the table, Veal Steal Armanino is a popular favorite. . . . For a true Italian delicacy, try the Cannelloni as served at Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant. Interestingly enough, the word cannelloni is a composition of "canne" (tube) and "oni" (large in size)—Served complete with a flavorful sauce, its made of pancake noodles stuffed with meat, chicken or cheese. Oh so tasty! And please do try their cheese cake.

Bud Dardi–Quite A Polo Player

Bud Dardi, exec. at Bruno's in the Mission, swings quite a polo mallett. In addition to his top form in Golden Gate Park, Bud has been invited to Hollywood Park in Los Angeles, where he will make the Honor Circle for distinguished performances. Nothing pleases Bud more at Bruno's than getting in to a good polo gabfest . . . Lynn Beatty is the lovely hostess at the Greek Taverna in North Beach, who is busily seating patrons these nights. Lynn is a delightful addition to the Greek-style club, and we wish her the best of luck . . . Folk, country, pop and rock, it's all in the amazing repertoire of Boston and Cisco Mason, who headline their own show on Friday and Saturday nights at Russo's in San Bruno. The femme member of their group has been described as the "best female bassist in California" . . . Stanley Pollard (he's president of Ambassador Tours) and his wife, Leone, entertained a group of friends at The Black Stag restaurant in Belmont before departing for a Caribbean cruise . . . The gourmet foods served to lunchers and diners at the private Villa Taverna in San Francisco are prepared in the kitchen of Doros, which adjoins the Villa, where many socialites hold their parties.

Traditional Luncheon Prelude

A martini or manhattan pause at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, "The Park Avenue of the Peninsula" in downtown San Mateo, is becoming a traditional, luncheon prelude in the Greenwillow dining room or Club Seville. Served by the pitcher (you pour your own drink), Jumbo Gimlets, Martinis and Manhattans are served from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the special price of 75 cents. Chefs Garden Salad Bowl and a Ground Round Steak Sandwich are light dishes among the plentiful luncheon selections on the moderately tabbed menu. Complete dinners are served until 8:45 p.m. Among the excellent dinner entrees are Roast Leg of Spring Lamb au Jus, Mint Jelly and Roast Prime Ribs of Beef au Jus

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

New Entertainment Policy Royal Coach

A new entertainment policy prevails at the Royal Coach Motor Hotel, where a musical carrousel of rotating entertainment is now a nightly attraction in the Deacon Brodie Lounge. Currently showcased and alternating to provide continuous entertainment from 8:30 p.m. are singer-guitarist Hank Falconer, a well known Bay Area entertainer, and the Joan Steele Trio, a talented threesome who combine their talents to present jazz at its finest . . . Reno and Julio Donati and Nick Sbarra offer banquet facilities suitable for almost any type of business or social gathering at their New Southern restaurant, South San Francisco. The "Southern Room" must hold the Peninsula record for hosting the most wedding receptions . . . The Iron Horse, located in Maiden Lane, is walking distance to theaters, so dinner here would mean parking only once before enjoying the show. Owner Sam Marconi will see that your visit is a pleasant and memorable one. Open Monday through Saturday for both luncheon and dinner . . . Humorist Billy Falbo is the headliner at the San Francisco Playboy Club through September 12. The comic fires unexpected ad libs and rapid one-liners at the audience, followed by song and dancing.

VOCALIST Helen Forrest, whose initial fame came when she was featured singer with the bands of Harry James, Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw, is belting out her great hits of the 30's and 40's three times nightly at the Miyako Hotel's Garden Bar, San Francisco. Miss Forrest creates a classic in nitery perfection as she sings such torchy hits like "You Made Me Love You" and "You'll Never Know Just How Much I Love You."

Steve Lawrence And Eydie Gorme–Sahara

Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme are breaking their own records of last year's attendance in the current engagement at the High Sierra Theater of the Sahara Tahoe Hotel. Appearing with Steve and Eydie, through September 6, is special guest comedian Ronnie Martin. Little Anthony and the Imperials keep the pace fast in the 300-seat Juniper Lounge. Completing the lineup is Frankie Fanelli, Billie Joe Royal and Sandy Knox. Appearing nightly in the intimate Pine Cone Lounge is Londoner Rich Bono . . . Departure times are 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. daily except Sunday from Ed's Smoke Shop, 1221 San Carlos Avenue, to John Ascuaga's Nugget, Sparks, Nevada, via Golden Tours. As a bonus, there is a $7 refund, $5 in cash and $2 in food and drink. Travel the Golden West from San Carlos to Reno on Golden Tours and have a great time . . . Fred and Mickie Finn, perennial favorites of night clubbers, and hosts of their own TV show, bring their hilarious cast of entertainers to the 750-seat Circus Room at John Ascuaga's Nugget in Sparks, Nevada, through September 8. Joining the Finns is Sammy King, ventriloquist supreme, and the "slap stick" team of Jim MacGeorge and Chuck McCann. Also featured in two shows nightly, with three shows on Saturdays, are Bertha and Tina, the Nugget's performing elephants, and the Sam Donahue Orchestra.

A. Sabella's Just Not Ordinary

Dinner in the well-appointed dining room at A. Sabella's may be proceeded by cocktails in the cheerful bar-lounge, one of the local favorites. This is no ordinary restaurant, located at colorful Fisherman's Wharf. It is a gathering place for the food conscious from the world over. Luncheon or dinner is all that one would expect of such a famous kitchen with a notable variety in selection . . . One of the most graciously appointed dining rooms on the Peninsula is that of Scotty Campbell's. Mary Lou Francis and Theresa and Bud Urban are the managing owners, which accounts for its consistently successful operation. The courteous service would be difficult to surpass, for the waitresses, in Scottish attire, assist each other so that every table receives constant attention. Entrees are of generous proportions, as you will see . . . Avis rent-a-car executive, headed by Clark Seidel, held a gourmet dinner meeting in the executive dining room of Lew Lehr's Steak House, in San Francisco's Marina district.

OHS Band Tunes Up For Fall Activities

Long before the opening of school at Oceana High there will be activity on the campus.

In order to be ready for the fall activities of football games, assemblies, and rallies, the Oceana Shark Marching Band will issue uniforms, instruments, and lockers to all band members on Thursday and Friday in the Muisc Room from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. each day.

Membership in the Shark Band is open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors, also incoming freshmen who were recommended by the instrumental music teachers of the intermediate schools in the area.

Enrollment in the Shark Band this year has doubled to over 70 members. This growth, according to band director Rober Shedd, is due to two main factors. The cooperation of the music teachers of the Laguna Salada School District and their encouragemet to their eighth grade band students. Second, the amount of time spent by the counseling staff at Oceana in scheduling a hghly select group of students.

The year's activities will have an official start the week before school opens. September 7 the first pre-schoolmarching drill practices will be held, starting at 9:30 a.m. These drill practices will continue until September 10.

Other activities during the year will include the usual Christmas and Spring Concerts, touring the elementary schools in San Bruno and Pacifica, and entering state-sponsored festivals and concerts.

Millbrae Librarian Can Aid the Deaf

The 150,000 deaf in the United States often use sign languale to communicate with one another, though schools for the deaf almost exclusively only teach some form of lip reading.

Help is provided for the deaf in San Mateo County by the County Free Public Library System. Mrs. Marie Furnanz at the Millbrae Library is able to communicate with the deaf in sign. She and two sisters were raised by deaf parents.

Mrs. Furnanz is a registered interpreter for the deaf in court cases.

Recently, a young, deaf couple discussing the due dates in the new books section of the Millbrae Library were interrupted by Furnanz. Silently she signed that "all books are due on Wednesday. The books checked out today are due in two weeks." This couple was surprised, but fortunately all deaf may talk with Mrs. Furnanz about their library needs at the Millbrae Library, 631 Magnolia Avenue, Monday, 6-9 p.m., Wednesday 9-5, and Thursday 9-1. She is occasionally available on Fridays and Saturdays. Families and friends of the deaf are encouraged to contact Mrs. Catherine Goodart, librarian, for further information.

Louanne Heath's Datebook

Children Follow Their Growth

Children of almost any age are intrigued by the way their bodies grow. Take a tape measure from a drawer and a line of children will appear waiting to see "how big" they have grown. This natural curiosity about themselves lends itself handily to a craft that you will value as much as the younger generation.

Get a piece of butcher paper, at least 18 inches longer than your child, and place it on the kitchen floor. Have your child lay down on the paper and with a dark pencil draw an outline completely around his body. Once the outline is completed provide crayons or paints and let the "model" fill in the features and supply clothing. The finished product can be hung on a closet door and, in six months or more you can have the child lay down on the paper and have a new outline drawn so the amount of growth, vertical and horizontal will be graphically evident to both of you.

SINCE CHILDREN are interested in all parts of their bodies you might like to let them do some learning while they are entertaining themselves.

Locate the unused tempra and starch mixture you saved from the straw painting episode and move it to the out-of-doors along with the youngsters and some long strips of paper. Pour one shade of paint into an aluminum pie pan and place on the right hand side of the paper. Pour a contrasting shade of paint into a similar pan on the left of the paper.

Have the children remove their shoes and socks and let them step in the pans of paint and then walk on the paper. If you watch to see that the right foot always dips into the right pan of paint and that the left foot doesn't end up with paint from the right side pan you will have some interesting lines of footprints.

When everyone has walked about in the paint and on the paper as much as they care to, you can point out the differences between the two feet and they can practice fitting the right foot into the right print and the left foot into the left print. Having the contrasting colors will be a big help to them as they seek to see if they are looking at a right foot print or a left one. The same thing can be done with hand prints and the end result will be that you have made it fun to learn the difference between the right and left sides of their bodies. Don't push the abstract lesson too hard but do talk about the differenes and point out the distinctive features and you will have helped them master a concept which can be complicated for some children.

IF THE DAY IS WARM enough for children to play in the water, lay the drop cloth out in the yard and let the children do finger paintings all over it with the starch and tempera concoction. When they have finished, the hose will wash away the entire artistic effort and you can dry the drop cloth before you store it away for another craft project. Inside, a formica table top or counter can be used to paint on and the creative efforts will wash away easily once the artist is through.

While we are dealing with paints lets go on to a few quick suggestions that will be fun for the children and little effort for you.

Leaves, some of which may be falling by this time, are fun to paint with thick starch and tempera. A water color brush or a fairly good size oil paint brush will do to apply a coat of paint to the underside of the leaves. The veins tend to get the most paint and the areas between will be rather "hit and miss" but the effect is pretty and children enjoy the novelty of painting on something other than paper.

Small, smooth rocks can be transformed into a face or a scene of some type by a young child equipped with a few paints, a brush and alively imagination.

A NICE, OVAL STONE can become a charming mouse if you give your boy or girl some adhesive reinforcing rings, a pair of triangles cut from black tape and several strands of heavy black thread.

Three strands of thread, caught in the middle and stuck to one end of the stone with one of the tape triangle, serve as whiskers for our mouse and a long, single strand of thread, stuck to the opposite end of the rock with the second tape triangle, provides a tail. The reinforcing rings become eyes when they are stuck above the whiskers! Nothing could be easier and this little fellow can be a paper weight so he'll lead a useful life on someone's desk!

Nursery School Tells Program

The morning and afternoon nursery school program at Pacifica Co-op Nursery School in Pomo Park is accepting application for the 1971-72 school year.

The unstructured school program encourages the child's social and intellectual development through the use of cooking projects, art programs, music and dance appreciation, story time, and carpentry activities.

A large playground is equipped with bikes, trikes and usual gym and playground equipment. Field trips are held throughout the year.

Fairest of Them All?

MISS DALY CITY: Diane Wagner

"Mirror, mirror on the wall, where are the fairest California girls of all?"

If your answer is "San Mateo County," you wouldn't get much of an argument from judges and officials of the three recent state-wide beauty contests dominated by a trio of feminine pulchritude from the county they call "Fiestaland."

In a state where beautiful girls are the rule, not the exception, San Mateo County, with a population over just over half a million people, is batting .1000 in the Golden State Beauty League. Local lassies have won all three of prestigious beauty contests held in the state this year.

First to carry the county banner to victory was Carolyn Stoner, who was named Miss California in the state contest in Santa Cruz last June. Carolyn, a brown-eyed, brunette beauty, was the "Miss San Mateo County" entry in the contest.

The 18-year-old, 115 pound College of San Mateo student will represent California in the Miss America pageant this fall in Miami Beach.

Earlier this month Kim Hobson, a voluptuous 19-year-old from San Bruno, was named Miss California to represent the state in the Miss Universe finals later this year in Puerto Rico. The green-eyed brunette, who measures 36-26-36, on a 5-foot, 7-inch, 128 pound frame, was actually entered in the state contest by the city of San Francisco. She is a former "Miss San Bruno."

Robyn Rawers, a former Miss Redwood City, is the reigning Maid of California. She was chosen at the beauty pageant which opened the Cal-Expo State Fair in Sacramento last Friday. Robyn, a 19-year-old, blue-eyed brunette, is a veterinary student at UC Davis, and was the representative of Yolo County in the state fair contest.

Ironically, all three girls had not fared so well in the first San Mateo County contests they all first entered. Carolyn, who was the 1970 "Miss Belmont," was second runner up in the "Fiestaland Dream Girl Pageant" that year. The Dream Girl reigns over the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta. Earlier this year Carolyn was successful in her bid for the "Miss San Mateo County" title, and went on to capture the state title in Santa Cruz. She measures 35½-24-35½.

Robyn was also an entrant in the 1970 Dream Girl pageant, but was not one of the top three finalists. The lissome beauty was later involved in a burglary investigation and relinquished her title of "Miss Redwood City." She was a last minute entry in the state fair beauty pageant competition this year and represented Yolo County because that is where UC Davis is located. The 113-pound, 5-foot, 7-inch college freshman measures 34-23-35.

Kim Hobson, who once sang with a rock and roll band called "Frumious Bandersnatch," also overcame a somewhat slow start in county-wide beauty competition to win her California beauty crown. As the "Miss San Bruno" entry in the 1969 "Fiestaland Dream Girl" pageant, she was not among the top three finishers. The trip to Puerto Rico and the chance to represent her state in international beauty competition should soothe any lingering pain of that earlier disappointment.

Mrs. Emily McAdams, director of the Dream Girl pageant for the San Mateo County Fair, says all three girls are "lovely representatives of the county, we're proud of all of our girls who enter the pageant." A former fashion consultant and official of many beauty pageants, Mrs. McAdams devotes a great deal of time to helping coach the girls, both before and after various beauty contests.

"In these days with all the talk about women's liberation, it's nice to know that many young ladies, and most men, are still interested in feminine beauty and poise," Mrs. McAdams added.

The current Fiestaland Dream Girl, Dianne Wagner of Daly City, was second runner-up in this year's state fair contest at Sacramento. She plans to enter the San Mateo County contest next year, and it's questionable whether or not her winning the Dream Girl crown will be a jinx if she aims for the higher California honors some day.

And finally, there is the 1970 Fiestaland Dream Girl, a charming and gracious beauty named Carleene McBurney. This 18-year-old part-time model, part-time college student chose not to enter any other beauty contests after winning her coveted title last year. On September 11 Carleene will make the most important walk she has ever made down any aisle or stage platform. On that day she will be married.

Newlyweds Make Trip to Hawaii

Hawaii was the honeymoon destination of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Aldo Strambi (Laurette Julie Beyer) who were married at St. Dunstan's Church in Millbrae. The newlyweds received felicitations at the Elks Club in South San Francisco.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Beyer of Millbrae. She said her promises in a long organza and lace gown styled with a high neckline and bouffant sleeves.

Marilyn Kurpinsky served as her sister's honor attendant and bridesmaids were Claudia Parker, Robert's sister, and Bernie White. Each of the trio wore a Kelly green long sleeved gown with a floral print skirt. Elaine Beyer, flower girl for her aunt's wedding, wore a short yellow dotted Swiss gown.

Best man for his brother was Gene Strambi. Both are the sons of the Aldo M. Strambis of Millbrae. Ushers included Mike Parker, Frank Kurpinsky and Dan and Dave Beyer, brothers of the bride. Kevin Parker carried the rings for his uncle's wedding.

Mills High School and Serra High School are the bride and benedict's respective alma maters.

The newlyweds are living in Millbrae.

NELL NORTON

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

With the high price of food these days a recipe for a dish that calls for just a half pound of frankfurters and serves four sounds interesting doesn't it? It did to me. This dish won a prize in the Bakd-Off a few years ago. It's a delightful new version of plain old tomato sauce and frankfurters. Table ready in an hour and a quarter.

PENNSYLVANIA KNOCKBOCKLE

½ pound frankfurters, cut in ¼-inch diagonal slices
2 tablespoons sweet pepper flakes
2 tablespoons dry onion flakes
1 can (8 oz.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
¼ cup water

Potato Topping

4 serving recipe Hungry Jack Mashed Potato Flakes
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Combine the half pound sliced frankfurters, two tablespoons each sweet pepper flakes and dry onion flakes, eight ounces spaghetti sauce, four ounces drained mushrooms and fourth cup water in a 1-quart casserole. Cover and bake at 400-degrees for 30 minutes. Drop potato topping by tablespoonfuls around edge of casserole. Sprinkle with additional Parmesan cheese and potato flakes.

Bake at 400-degrees 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown.

Potato Topping

Prepare 4-serving recipe mashed potatoes as directed on package using 1 cup water. Blend in the egg and fourth cup Parmesan cheese.

Serves 4.

Just this week I received a letter from a nice lady in South San Francisco requesting a recipe which she had lost. This prune cake is so good and so easy to make that I'm happy to repeat it for her and any of you other good cooks who might have missed it or misplaced it.

GLAZED PRUNE CAKE

2½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon each nutmeg, cinnamon and allspice
1 cup corn oil
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
Two-thirds cup buttermilk
1½ cups coarsely cut cooked, drained, pitted prunes
1 cup sliced almonds

Sift together the two and one half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon baking soda, fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon each nutmeg, cinnamon and allspice. Set aside.

In large mixing bowl beat together the one cup corn oil and one and one-half cups sugar. Add the three eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in the teaspoon vanilla.

Add the sifted dry ingredients alternately with the two-thirds cup buttermilk, about a third at a time, blending well after each addition. Stir in the one and one-half cups prunes and one cup sliced almonds.

Prepare a 9-inch tube pan by geasing only the bottom and covering the bottom with waxed paper. Pour the cake batter into pan and bake in preheated 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. About one hour.

About 15 minutes before cake is done, prepare the following glaze. Pour hot glaze immediately over cake in pan.

BUTTERSCOTCH GLAZE

1 cup sugar
½ cup buttermilk
¼ cup (that's half a stick) margarine
¼ cup light corn syrup
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon vanilla

Into a 3-quart saucepan turn the one cup sugar, half cup buttermilk, fourth cup margarine, fourth cup light corn syrup and half teaspoon each baking soda and vanilla.

Over medium heat, stirring occasionally, bring to a full boil and boil for 10 minutes.

While sauce is hot pour over the cake in pan, just when you remove the cake from the oven. Allow the sauce to soak into the cake. Cool the cake completely.

Run a thin knife or spatula around the edge of pan and around the tube to loosen cake. Turn out and remove waxed paper. Place right side up on serving plate. If there is any of the sauce left in the cake pan, pour it over the cake.

Sixth Year For Widget Nursery

The San Mateo County Y.W.C.A. Widget World Nursery School begins its sixth year as a functioning nursery September 13.

The YWCA has worked with pre-school children for many years prior to the start of the nursery.

In 1969, the Widget World Nursery School was licensed by the California Department of Social Welfare. At the present time a program is offered for children from 2 years 9 months to 6 years old.

A full 2½ hours of creative playtime is available five mornings per week—Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Parents can enroll their children for 2, 3, 4 or 5 days per week.

Parents can work on a co-op basis, or for a slightly higher fee be excused from working at the nursery.

On the co-op basis, mothers work one morning every other week. Every month an evening meeting is held on the second Monday and at least one parent per family is expected to attend.

In these ways parents are able to observe, study and learn how to work effectively with children and other adults. They are helped to understand the behavior of their children and their relationships.

Linda Bodenhamer is the school's supervisor. She has a B.S. in Child and Family Behavior from the University of Missouri, and has had experience in day care teaching in San Francisco.

For further information contact the San Mateo YWCA at 375 South Mayfair, Room 217, in the Westlake Shopping Center, Daly City.

New Families Must Register At Westborough

Families that have moved during the summer and will have a student attending Westborough Junior High School this fall, are requested to register at the school as soon as possible.

This applies to students new to the school, whether in seventh, eighth, or ninth grade.

Mrs. Edna de Larios, principal at Westborough, said the school is showing a rapidly increasing enrollment. Since the office opened in mid-August, there has been an average of four new registrations per day. Students may come to the school office any week-day between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. to register, and fill out a program card. This allows the school a better opportunity to schedule the courses that a student desires.

THE MARQUEE

"Von Ryan's Express" author David Westheimer based the novel on his experiences during the war. It was his sixth book and he wrote it mornings while working afternoon and evenings as Television Editor of the Houston Post from 1953 to 1960.

Now he's drawn again on the war, switching the theater of operations to Japan and building speculation and imagination on top of fact for a novel of the invasion of Japan, "Lighter Than a Feather," (Little, Brown Co. $7.95).

He proposes the hypothetical question of what would have been the outcome of the war if the United States didn't drop the atom bomb. The 40-page epilogue gives you the facts behind the drama; what plans America had to launch an amphibious attack on the mainland and how Japan planned to counterattack. Then the fiction begins, pieced from military research and ignoring the bomb drop. It is a fascinating and adroitly written tour de force.

The former Air Force officer began writing novels at age 30. His original script for "My Sweet Charlie" won three Emmy awards, was nominated for an additional two and had the third highest audience of any show made for television. It was turned by three film companies before being accepted. He is now working on a novel based on the screen and television script, "Days of Wine and Roses."

"Lighter Than a Feather" evolved out of an article Westheimer read about America's invasion plans and another one much later on Japan's planned defense based on weather, and surf conditions. "In the middle of an argument with a friend one day, I supported the idea that we should drop the bomb. That was then. Now I'm a dove on Vietnam," he says.

"The logic and commonsense thinking that prevailed in World War II was that 'if you had it, you used it.' We were fighting a holy war then based on what happened at Bataan and Pearl Harbor and propaganda as very strong. No feelings mitaged against the bomb but then we didn't know how powerful it was. You can't judge by today's standards.

"People have called the atom bomb racist because of its destruction against the orientals. But the Dresden destruction was worse and more people were killed by fire bombs in Tokyo than with the atom bomb. All nations share guilt, including Germany, Japan and America."

"My book is about what happens to people in a war situation, not about the atom bomb. The military helped me research it at a higher cost than I was advanced on my first five books. And it was only the second book I researched. Von Ryan's was the first because of the trains."

PERHAPS THIS IS TOO LITTLE and too late. In this space allotted us we want to make our feelings known on the subject of "cop killings." We're sick and tired of asking others what they think. Right now it seems important to this columnist to let the reader understand how he feels.

AND HE FEELS SICK AND TIRED. Sick, because his life is flashing past and all he can do is sit back and shake his head in disgust and disbelief. What is all this nonsense of gunning down policemen inside their stations; slitting throats of inmates and guards alike; crazy bombing of commercial and government buildings? We've heard the terrorists' side of the thing. And it still doesn't make sense.

"OFF THE PIGS" means "kill 'em". We want the innocent bystander to know this. More and more in recent months the "bystander' is just that—someone who stands by . . . and watches They watch while someone else takes the brunt of the punishment being handed out by various militant groups. That's what they're called: Activists. Militarists. Revolutionaries. Actually they are Terrorists. They must be terrorists because they strike terror in me.

MUCH COVERAGE WAS GIVEN to the funeral of George Jackson, the San Quentin inmate, but the media felt it only necessary to give the victims of the "Q" uprising a single line.

Something was said about a "quiet funeral" for those who died at the hands of the butcher or butchers that maimed and murdered the guards and inmates.

Actually it was a "quiet" funeral only because much of the media chose to ignore it. The Jackson funeral was more "colorful" perhaps. We're sick and tired of this sort of news coverage. Turn off the camera lights and you turn off the mouthings that are crippling a great nation.

The gathering of news—both sides—and giving an unbiased report is a newsman's duty protected under the Constitution. Any editorializing should be confined to the editorial pages and editorial editors (in the case of radio and TV) and not on general news pages. Seems some of today's fuzzy cheeked media-men are living up to Vice-President Agnew's description of "effete snobs."

EQUALLY WE'RE SICK AND TIRED of those who shout "America—Love it or Leave it." Why should we export our troubles? To work for a better country is one thing. To attempt to reduce it to rubble and seize power is another. That appears to be the aim of some terrorist groups today. Their excuse? They have many, including the Vietnam Thing, the problem of racism, poverty, pollution, ecology, and on and on.

In truth when they run out of these reasons for blowing up buildings and shooting policemen, they'll come up with new ones, never fear that they won't.

THIS MAY SOUND STRANGE, but we also feel the Vietnam War is a sensational blunder. We, too, have felt the crunch of racism, poverty and the frustrations that go with watching our environment raped and our earth polluted.

And yet we have elected not to shoot anyone, blow up any banks or shout obscenities at politicians.

After a few thousand miles of travel throughout much of the Middle and Far East, including a peek or two behind the Iron Curtain (even that obstacle is coming down) we can say with some knowledge that this country—the United States of America—may have problems, but these problems are shared by other countries. The U.S. has no monopoly on racism, poverty, pollution and the like.

Anyone that thinks it has is suffering from acute tunnel vision. No folks, those who would lash out at the country with guns, bombs and knives, instead of using their God-given senses, need no excuse to commit their atrocities against the people.

WHAT IS EVEN MORE despicable is those Bleeding Heart advocates of this type of carryings on. By no strength of our imagination can we find justification for gunning down any person—policeman, politician or private citizen—in an attempt to "sell" the idea that this or that is a wrong.

The Post gives its columnists a great deal of latitude, offering its readers the benefit of knowledgeable, varying opinion. Their opinions are not necessarily those of The Post which addresses itself to its readers only through clearly marked editorials.

'Spirit(s)' and the Revolution --Soldier Bottles

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The spirit of 200 years of American history has given impetus to a spirits company to come up with a new line of collectors' bottles.

E. Martinoni Company, originators of the "grenadier" figurines, is recreating in perfect detail colorful soldiers of the American Revolutionary Army, Michael Spina, national sales manager for the South San Francisco-based firm, announced this week.

The initial figurine will be of a soldier of the First Company of Connecticut, handpainted on porcelain and exact in every detail—color, uniform and arms, Spina said.

Soldiers of the First Company, still active in the Governor's Foot Guard, celebrate their 200th birthday this year. The figurine will be issued in October at the Governor's Military Ball in New Haven, Connecticut.

For several months representatives of the Martinoni company have been working closely with the Legion of Colonial Military Commands in preparation for the release of the first of an army of "soldiers."

In all, 60 units of the Revolutionary Army — all active since 1776 and earlier — will be recreated by Grenadier spirits. Each unit will march in the bicentennial parade in Philadelphia in 1976.

"Bottlemania" is now sweeping the country with collectors taking exceptional interest in creations of the nation's top three makers — Ezra Brooks, Beam and the Grenadier line.

While Beam dates its collectors' bottles back a dozen years, Martinoni's Grenadiers established their beachhead only two years ago.

But the latter is already making spectacular gains in the bottle battle.

One thing that makes Grenadier increasingly popular with international collectors is the material used in the manufacture.

Made of imported Japanese porcelain from the Nagoya area, the bottles are handpainted and hand formed.

Japan's porcelain factories date back to the 17th century.

Porcelain is regarded as an art form in Japan with deep religious significance.

Nagoya is Japan's principle porcelain manufacturing city, as Limoges is in France.

This quality is a collector's assurance his Grenadier figurine will grow in value over the years, Spina explained during a recent visit to the company's local headquarters.

As an example of how these bottles grow in value, Spina noted that the company's first issue—Napoleon—was put on the market in August 1969 at a cost to the public of $18.95.

There were only 3,600 bottles issued nationwide. This limited number included breakage and an expected five per cent loss.

Immediately after the issue the master molds were destroyed in Japan.

"("We destroy the molds—not the guy who makes them," Spina likes to point out.)

Today the Napoleon figure is selling for $59.95 up — if you can find one.

There are some collectors that will sell their Napoleons, if a person agrees to purchase the entire line of Grenadiers at the going rate.

And the rate is going . . . up

Part of the company's Grenadier line

In two years Spina's firm has issued 20 Grenadiers totaling some 7,000 cases of soldiers.

"We're not jousting with windmills. We take our work in this field very serious. These soldiers are authentic in every way," Spina said.

To support his statements, Spina held up a soldier of the Kings African Rifle Corps (1914) and told how it had failed to pass close U.S. government scrutiny on its size.

"It held more than a fifth of cream sherry, but not quite a quart. So we had to send it back and destroy every bottle," he said.

Somehow, several dozen bottles "disappeared" en route back to Japan.

"Those rejects are similar to a stamp or coin that has been misprinted. Someday they'll be worth a considerable amount of money," Spina said.

What's new in the collectors' world?, company president Morton G. M. Baruh was asked.

"Our mini-soldiers and upcoming line of war figures," Baruh answered.

The "war figures" will include General Patton, Eisenhower and Custer, while the mini-soldiers will be two ounce exact replicas of the larger Grenadiers.

Only 200 cases of each mini-soldier will be released, Spina said.

A connoisseur collector's club started by the Grenadier firm in recent months has fast caught hold in the nation.

Already more than 150 clubs have beenformed with headquarters in Mullins, South Carolina, hometown of club president Darrell Gunn.

One thousand special figurines of Joan of Arc are being made especially for members of the National Grenadier Porcelain Bottle Club of America.

To best illustrate the financial potential of a bottle put out by companies — and many companies are starting to jump on the bottle wagon — Jim Beam's 1964 issue of the "First National Bank of Chicago" is now listed for a mere $2,300.

And to think of all the booze bottles we've thrown away over the years.

Our Viewpoints

Way to Better Meat Found

People sometimes wonder if, apart from their entertainment value and spectacular features, the annual Grand National Livestock Expositions held each fall in San Mateo County's Cow Palace have any real value.

They know, of course, that the general purpose of these giant livestock exhibitions is to provide display, judging and the awarding of prizes for the nation's finest livestock. But not too many realize that the motive behind all this is the improvement of livestock breeding, raising and feeding practices.

The genuine value for the public comes in terms of better, more tender, and more succulent steaks, roasts, chops and the other high protein meat products. The pay-off is in more quality per pound to the consumer.

But how is the public to know that this objective is being achieved? The experts and the judges could pick what appeared to them to be the top quality and their judgments were, and are, excellent in terms of livestock "on the hoof." But what about "meat on the table?"

Credit for finding a way to prove the table quality must go to the ingenuity of Grand National officials who have developed a foolproof method of doing this. As a result, almost every big livestock show in the nation is using, or preparing to use this method devised here in San Mateo County. Canadian and European livestock exhibitions are expected to follow.

The method is the live steer and carcass contest that was inaugurated at the Grand National in 1969.

The contest consists of evaluating competing steers in the show ring and again after slaughter, on the rails of a packer's meat cooler. Only animals graded choice quality, or better, are eligible for the carcass contest.

George Strathearn, California Beef Council manager, who developed the contest when he was Cow Palace manager, explains:

"We fooled ourselves for too many years by selecting cattle that looked good on the outside but were wasty and lacked muscle on the inside. When we introduced this competition two years ago, I predicted that it would be the most copied contest in the nation within five years. I was wrong, it took only two years."

This contest will be a featured highlight at the coming 1971 Grand National Exposition in the Cow Palace from October 24, through 31.

So there is a lot more to the Grand National than the fun and excitement of its arena shows. It is raising the quality of meat for the consumer.

Back to School

(Samuel Chandler is on vacation. His column is written this week by Shelia Cavanor.)

Vacation time is over and we're heading back to the school year routine. But why not vary that routine this year? Devote one hour each day to a new, entertaining pastime? Why not try vegetable dyeing using Alma Lesch's guidebook to this ancient craft with 151 color recipes for dyeing yarns and fabrics with natural materials.

Perhaps you have a quilt your grandmother made. Make one yourself with the help of Jean Ray Laury's, Quilts and Coverlets, a contemporary approach to that traditional art.

Another art your grandmother may have practiced, which is again an everyday pastime, is needlepoint. Mary Martin's Needlepoint recalls highlights of her life on stage and off as she "tells about making needlepoint for everyone from her children to Rodgers and Hammerstein." Betty Alfers, too, gives step-by-step instructions for more than 30 stitches of crewel embroidery.

Do you think rubbings are only for a few esoteric English collectors? Read Creative Rubbings, by Laye Andrew before your next trip to the Gold Country or Mission Delores and practice some rubbings yourself on an old bank insignia or even an old tombstone or water main cover.

Stringing beads isn't only for children. This fascinating craft so popular in the Victorian Age is staging a comeback. "Bead Design," by Ruth Wasley and Edith Harris begins with general instructions (working only with beads and wire) and progresses to "advanced procedures for creating truly beautiful objects for home decoration and fashion accessories."

Do you have a bag of old Christmas cards stored away? Christmas Card Magic, by Margaret Perry gives many clever ideas on "how to make decorations, gifts and ornaments from Christmas cards."

Did you ever think of basket weaving, hand spinning, Japanese flower arrangements, batik, macrame, crayon painting, corrugated carton crafting, creating in wood with the lathe?

Take a book home today and have a new, entertaining hobby tomorrow.

If the actual spinning and weaving is not for you, perhaps you'd like to make a hobby of collecting. Are you interested in Avon bottles, model automobiles, tobacco tins or something called "art nouveau?" Read about the new collectibles and then armed with this knowledge visit your closest flea market or neighborhood garage sale next weekend. Collecting can be as entertaining as creating. The knowhow for either is waiting for you at the library.

Airport's Taxicab Service Is Intolerable for Peninsulans

The "bad time" given taxi-seeking, Peninsula-bound passengers deplaning at the San Francisco International Airport has gone beyond the point of toleration.

What happens, time after time, is that the drivers of the San Francisco Yellow Cab Company refuse to serve these passengers on the ground that they lose money on the shorter San Mateo County and Peninsula hauls and that they lose their place in line for more lucrative longer fares into San Francisco and other points north of the county line.

There are state laws prohibiting such refusals and San Francisco Yellow Cab, which holds an exclusive contract for service from the airport claims that they are trying to enforce the no-refusal law, but that they are meeting resistance from the drivers and their union, San Francisco Local 265 of the Chauffeurs Union, which they say threatens to "close down" the airport. A vice-president of San Francisco Yellow Cab says his company is "in the middle" of the dispute and a remedy must come from the airport management.

Airport management shrugs the problem off and says it is up to Yellow Cab to discipline its drivers who refuse the short hauls. There seems to be a feeling that the problem is unsolvable.

Meanwhile, it is the Peninsula air passengers who are "in the middle." And, as The Times pointed out in an editorial of last January 19, the number of San Mateo County passengers at the airport is only five percent under the number of those from San Francisco. Before this decade is out they will be in the majority.

The new San Francisco Airport Commission and its management has therefore been well apprised of the problem and should have long ago taken positive action to meet it. It can ill afford allowing virtually half of its deplaning passengers to be refused and abused by surly San Francisco cab drivers.

The problem is not unsolvable if the Airport Commission will make a genuine attempt to meet its responsibility to its Peninsula patrons—even if this should mean relinquishing or splitting the revenue it is receiving for its exclusive contract with San Francisco Yellow Cab.

It is not our original thought, but we suggest that dual cab stands or cruising arrangements could be implemented and that San Francisco Yellow Cab service deplaning passengers bound north of the county line and that San Mateo County cab companies service those with destinations south of the line.

It should not prove difficult to establish an airport revenue fee schedule, based upon fares, payable by all cabs taking passengers out of the airport.

If this is not possible we have other suggestions.

One is that deplaning Peninsula passengers should be advised to request San Mateo County Sheriff's officers on duty at the airport to commandeer taxis for them under threat of exercising the existing state law against the drivers, or;

That the State Public Utilities Commission be called upon to see that the state laws are enforced. This is definitely a matter of the public necessity and convenience and, as such, should come under the purview and duty of that state commission.

This intolerable condition at the airport cannot be permitted to continue.

"THAT'S A GOOD SNOOPY," the children say to the Ice Follies' super size "Snoopy," The Follies recently admitted at reduced rates a group of children unable to attend otherwise. McGovern Says He Will Attack Nixon Domestic, Asian Policy

Senator George McGovern, expanding his campaign against the Nixon Administration, announced on Sunday he will now attack two issues—domestic and Southeast Asia policies.

McGovern is the only announced Democratic presidential candidate.

He has assumed President Nixon will be the Republican party's standard bearer in 1972 and has squared off early against him.

The South Dakota senator said the nation will have twin burdens to share in the 1970s, namely ending the war in Southeast Asia and focusing attention on domestic problems.

"My position on the (Vietnam) war is well understood," McGovern said. "In upcoming weeks I intend to make my position known on the problems that face us here on the domestic front."

Nixon has failed to end the war in Vietnam and does not deserve to wear the label of a "peacemaker," McGovern told a small, enthusiastic group of supporters greeting him at the Rodeway Inn in South San Francisco.

Making a quick tour of the Bay Area, McGovern earlier had spoken before a crowd of some 1,000 at a cocktail party in San Jose.

Fewer than a dozen persons welcomed him as he stepped into the hotel's lobby shortly after 4 p.m.

Inside, about 100 persons paid $3 each to listen to the senator's extemporaneous remarks.

Calling the South Vietnam elections "a fraud," McGovern accused the administration of footdragging in ending the war. He said the controversial matter now was "nothing more than a face-saving gesture."

"Here we have the spectacle of the American ambassador (Ellsworth Bunker) in Saigon scurrying around trying to scrape up a candidate to run against General Thieu so we can say we're supporting free elections. What a fraud," McGovern charged.

"How can we continue to ask young men to die for this sort of operation . . . it's a one-man dictatorship," McGovern said.

Commenting on the President's recent wage and price freeze, McGovern noted "it helps only big business."

He suggested the administration should impose an excess profits curb during the freeze similar to the 82 per cent imposed during the second World War and 95 per cent during the Korean War.

The so-called Lockheed Loan was labeled as "rank favoritism designed to help one corporation while ignoring the credit needs of other businesses across the country."

McGovern also hit President Nixon on the current unemployment rate.

The 20-25 billion dollars being spent on the Vietnam War could be used to build needed homes and to underwrite mass transit systems, McGovern said.

Such revenues also could fund health and education facilities and combat pollution, the candidate said.

Each ill afflicting the nation stems from the Vietnam War McGovern indicated during his discussion.

One of the first things he would do as President, McGovern vowed is to start listening to the Supreme Court (of the United States).

McGovern accused Nixon's southern strategy of exploiting racisim, rather than curbing it.

Asked if a McGovern-Lindsey ticket had been ruled out for the 1972 campaign McGovern replied "not at all."

County Gets $2,765,907

San Mateo County today was alloted $2,765,907 for revenues lost due to reduction by the state of property taxes on business inventories.

State Controller Houston I. Flournoy said he has distributed $2,074,430 to San Mateo County, as 75 per cent of the county's share of "lost" funds.

The other 25 per cent will be distributed in April, he said.

Flournoy said $72,333,360 has been distributed to the state's 58 counties from the property tax relief fund established by the 1967 legislature. Money in the fund comes from the state's bank and corporation tax, one-fourteenth of which is directed toward property tax relief in the counties.

Controller Flournoy said county auditors will now distribute to the cities, school districts, and special districts the revenues lost by each.

2nd Arrested in Robbery

South San Francisco police have made a second arrest in connection with the August 4 robbery of Beneficial Finance Company.

Booked Friday was Royal Terry, 21, of San Francisco. He was arrested by San Francisco police and turned over to South San Francisco authorities.

Arrested earlier was Jimmy L. Spikes, also of San Francisco. Police said one suspect is still being sought.

During the robbery, the suspects escaped with $400, which police said has not been returned.

Meany Battles on 3 Different Fronts

Astute public men often battle on several fronts at the same time. Really able and adroit leaders work things out so the issues are related and each battle reinforces and at times supports the other.

Consider George Meany, the president of the AFL-CIO. Now 77 years old, Meany has been around for a long time. Blessed with lasting vigor, he combines decades of experience with that interesting independence that often characterizes older active men.

Meany is engaged on three fronts, and perhaps more. Let's consider the three we know of.

First, as president of the world's largest labor organization, he is deeply involved in labor's continuing struggle for high wages and benefits. The major current conflict on this broad front is his battle with the administration about wage and price controls.

Second, Meany is an activist in internal Democratic party politics. He seeks a Presidential nominee who will be responsive to the requirements of labor. This brings him into direct opposition to the McCarthys, the McGoverns and the Lindsays. It is reasonable to guess that Meany's dreams see Humphrey-Jackson as nominees, but that he might be well satisfied with less, say a Muskie-Jackson combination.

Third, George Meany is engaged in a struggle to reestablish union leadership as a political force. He knows that since 1965 labor has not voted according to the dictates of its heirarchy. No one understands better the Republican (and now the new left) reach over the airwaves and through the printed media. Meany can count, and he perceives that laboring men and their wives make up a swing vote that can make or break Congressmen, Senators and Presidents.

Union members are susceptible to Republican wooing, providing the courtship is conducted with finesse. As homeowners and residents of suburbia, they worry, among other things, about high taxes, law and order, and schools.

The Republican quest must be carefully conducted. While by-passing union leadership, the working man as an equal Too blatant a play upon fears and animosities can backfire, as was seen with the hardhat campaign of 1970. The required appeal should be that of sound, steady government that offers hope for jobs, education and a secure future.

So this intelligent and able old warrior seeks to re-exert union political leadership. He attacks Republicans as the party of the rich, and seeks issues that will fire up old and nascent furies. He believes that such an issue has come his way with the 90-day wage-price freeze.

The failure of the executive order and subsequent regulations to give recognition to on-going strikes and prebargained wage increases that fall due during the period has opened a political pandora's box. Meany rapidly moved to stage center, and using some of labor's best known cliches, has mobilized the working man as he hasn't been for some years. He has probably made substantial gains in all three of his battles.

First—After the 90-day period, it is likely that labor will be allowed a catch-up period no matter what new form administration policy takes. Present regulations already suggest the way out of the on-going strike problem — defer the increase until after the 90-day period.

Second — All of Meany's clamor is hitting home with his constituency. Men who contracted for an increase consider the additional money as something bargained for and earned. Some, through credit, have already spent the money. As it was taken away (even for a period), animosities easily develop.

Meany's fulminations, therefore, have not fallen on deaf ears. His fight against the administration forms part of his struggle to recapture labor as a reliable political bloc.

Third — The better Meany does in exciting and realigning labor as a political force, the stronger his figure appears in Democratic party politics.

So that likely (but by no means certain) script runs like this. Meany raises a fuss during the 90-day period, and on the ninty-first day, the administration moves to relieve some of the pressure. Meany thereafter claims victory and continues to fuss. Canny George wants it both ways: release from rigid controls, plus a campaign issue.

S.F. State Suffered Most From Bad Publicity in 1968

(Sam Goldman, director of athletic publicity at San Francisco State College, is a guest columnist this week. Goldman, who has been intimately associated with athletics at State for the past 15 years, herewith discusses the subject he loves best, and which he is probably the most eminently qualified man in the world to discuss ..... the State athletic program.)

In all probability, San Francisco State is the Bay Area college which suffered the most from the extensive news coverage and publicity as a result of the 1968 campus protests and turmoil.

Just mention the three words — San Francisco State — during the past three years (1968-1969-1970) and there would be enough negative synonyms to add three pages to the Roget's Thesaurus.

However, prior to that Fall 1968 term, the Lake Merced campus ranked as one of the nation's leading education and teacher-training institutions, as well as boasting an outstanding and respected athletic program among the National Collegiate Athletic Association college division teams. (It is still rated high in the academic world.)

During the period between 1950 through 1967 the Golden Gators won 11 Far Western Conference football championships in the 15 seasons they were in the league . . . In 1967 they were in the Camellia Bowl football NCAA championship game . . . Their basketball teams captured five FWC titles, played in five NCAA regional playoffs, and participated in the NCAA finals at Evansville, Indiana . . . Two FWC baseball and three league wrestling crowns also were posted by SF State teams.

NUMEROUS ATHLETES won individual honors and awards. The Gators still hold a unique distinction among small colleges, having had three football players participating in the world renowned Shrine East-West fotball game. They were lineman Floyd Peters (1957), running back Charlie Fuller (1960), and end Joe Koontz (1967).

Once the protests and upheavals occurred, the 13 SFSC sports were hit just as hard as other programs on the campus. The athletes, coaches, and staff continued to function, but under numerous handicaps and barriers.

The prime example was found in the college's football program. In 1968 the Gators seemed to be on the road to another gridiron title with a 4-1 season mark when "all-hell broke loose!" SFSC head coach Vic Rowen, his staff, and his players saw their top ranking dwindle to a 5 win-5 loss season mark; a 3 win-7 loss total in 1969; and a 0 win-9 loss-1 tie record last year, the poorest total in the college's modern football history.

FOR THE PAST THREE YEARS, SF State's athletic status has been tossed like a ship in a storm. Yet, the coaches and the athletes have stood fast to insure that athletics and the physical education programs continue as a vital section for the students at San Francisco State.

Mind you, we're not trying to be nostalgic or sentimental about San Francisco State College. If there is anything that the Gator campus does not possess it is tradition, numerous ancient rituals, big-time ambitions, and clinging ivy structures found on other campuses.

Yet, SF State is one of the oldest colleges in the state of California.

Except for the loyalty of a hard core group of individual graduates and faculty members, the more than 60,000 degree and credential holders from Gatorville who reside in Northern California have more loyalty to their local newspaper delivery boy than they do to their alma mater.

SF State offers no athletic scholarships, no grants-in-aid, no letters-of-intents, no promises, promises, promises. Instead, the Gator coaches, who also are teachers and professors of physical education, offer the talented athlete and student exactly what an educational institution is supposed to offer . . . a good academic education and preparation for a meaningful vocation and career. All the reader has to do is to look at the faculty roster of any Bay Area and Northern California school or college and business firm. There will be a former student-athlete on that list. They received their education and opportunity to participate on the Gator athletic teams whether it be in the present campus with its two gymnasiums, Cox Stadium, and Thomas Maloney baseball field, or in "ye good olde" days on the Valencia Street Ewing field, Kezar Stadium and Pavilion.

JUST THE SAME, the past three seasons have forced the Gators "to hang-in-tough." There have been few moments in which to cherish the victory and many hours in which to try to soften the pain and bruises that come with the agony of defeat.

Maybe the incident and the words of Coach Rowen best personify the frustration, anger, and determination of the coaches, staff and players. This event occurred a couple of seasons back after one of their disastrous setbacks. Rowen was watching his players boarding the bus, while he was talking to one of the coaches from the other team. Suddenly, Rowen turned sharply to the victorious coach. Holding back tears in his eyes and the anger-hurt in his heart, he quickly exclaimed:

"One of these days we're coming back here and we'll erase that score. And it's going to be sooner than you think."

Then he boarded the bus to chat with his players and try to bolster their morale. He knew it was going to be a long drive back to San Francisco State.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since those dark and tragic days, the athletic programs and teams at SF State are beginning to show signs of the success which made them a nationally ranked and respected athletic power. Just this past winter and spring three new coaches have helped bring back that winning feeling. The Gators won their sixth Far Western Conference basketball championship and a spot in the NCAA Far West College Division regionals under newcomer Jerry Waugh.

New baseball coach Al Figone, formerly of Terra Nova High in Pacifica, gave the SF Staters their first baseball title in nearly a decade. It was a runaway by three games, but they had to relinquish the crown on an ineligible player ruling. Gayle Hopkins, an Olympic champion contender in the long jump and new track and field coach, got the Gators out of the cellar division area and is developing top performers and speedsters.

HEAD WRESTLING COACH Allen Abraham already has moved his squad into a top ranking position among the state and national wrestling circles. The SF State wrestling coaches and staff again this season will host a number of top high school, junior college, college, and team tournaments in the SF State men's gym.

The dark days may have passed for football at Lake Merced. Vic Rowen and his grid staff, in their quiet and determined way, are once again expressing words of cautious optimism such as "We're coming back" . . . "It may be another tough season, but this year we feel we have a good chance to win."

Let the coaches speak for themselves:

AL FIGONE, baseball: "I feel this coming season we'll have a much better team than last year. Our 1971 club won the league championship 13-5. It is interesting that at one time during the season we were 1-11 and then won 19 out of our next 31 games, including victories over such nationally ranked clubs as Santa Clara, UC Berkeley, Fresno State and USF. This year we have some fine baseball players coming to SF State as well as our returning veterans. This could be the Gators' baseball year."

GAYLE HOPKINS, track-field and cross-country: "We took only 11 men to the Far Western Conference championships this past season. Yet, we finished in fifth place; the highest finish in eight seasons and only 12 points out of fourth place.. We finished fifteenth in the NCAA College Division championships, and twenty-second in the NCAA College Division championships. Both of these marks are an all-time best for San Francisco State. John Pettus was an FWC, NCAA Small College, and NCAA University divisions top point getter for us. Along with John and returning trackmen Don Imrie, Charles Hammond, Gary Bradford, Rick Hurley, and Dave Fernandez plus the newcomers, we expect to improve on our standings both in the league and in NCAA events."

JERRY WAUGH, basketball: "The current basketball program at San Francisco State is coming back to the level which again will make us a continual contender for the Far Western Conference title. There is little doubt but what the campus problems in recent years temporarily injured our efforts. However, winning the FWC title and going on to the NCAA regionals last season put a more favorable light upon basketball on the campus. Our returning players such as Gary Bradford, Jack Wilson, Tom McVey, Vance Devost, Chuck Hammond, Tom Johnston, Larry Taylor and Ray Hearne give us a strong nucleus. Most of all, the interest and enthusiasm displayed by the incoming freshmen and college transfers have been the best in nearly four years."

ALLEN ABRAHAM, wrestling: "We have developed a wrestling program at San Francisco State, despite the various campus problems, in which we now are able to compete with any college in the state. We host numerous tournaments as well as travel to both the small and major colleges. This year will be a rebuilding year for us, because we have lost seven wrestlers from last season's team. However, we feel that we should be in the thick of the league race. We are proud of our past accomplishments, which include three league titles in six years. Three of our wrestlers have been top NCAA winners. They were Bob Buelher, 191 lbs.; Art Chavez, 123 lbs., and Ashlee Sherman, 160 lbs."

VIC ROWEN, football: "There is no doubt about it, football was hit the hardest by the tensions and problems on this campus. It was hit the most primarily, because in football you need a lot of players on both the varsity and freshman teams. During the past three years we had outstanding players, but not enough of them. However, we feel that we are getting out of the woods this coming season. The dedicated efforts of our coaches both on the varsity and freshman levels, the loyalty of some of our former players who are now coaches, and the interest of the new players and their parents in our program is giving us a start on the road back to our former ranking. While this season is still a question mark, we feel that for the first time in three years we've got a good chance to come up with a better team."

PAUL RUNDELL, director of athletics: "We are happy to know that student-athletes and their parents are again showing an interest in the college's education and athletic programs. The cooperation of the college administration along with the Associated Students leaders will again help athletics on this campus. These have been tough years not only on this campus, but at other collegiate institutions. However, we're back in contention again and hope to stay there."

This feeling of optimism and dedication is the same which brought Gator athletics out of the ranks of the unknown to one of national prominence during the past two decades.

If anything, San Francisco State students and faculty, graduates and fans for the first time in many-a-moon might have something to shout about in a more positive vein, like "We're the Champs!"

Young Shell Team Wins in Pacifica

Pacifica Shell's young team whalloped the Christian Athletics 21 to 2 in a game shortened to five innings by a thick shroud of fog.

With the combined pitching and hitting of Mike Cleary, the 2901 Club dominated the action in a 15 to 8 win over Baroni's.

Manor Barber won their first game of the young season over the Henchmen, with a flurry of power at the plate by the score of 12 to 8.

Sun Valley contained all but the Taufers in handing Lou's 66 a 12 to 4 loss. Stan Taufer Sr. had an excellent day at the plate as well as handling the catching tools with skill and experience for the loosers.

Silver Moon, coming off a fog cancelled game last week, looked in the prime as their young mentor Dennis Rosselli, skillfully coached them to a 9 to 3 win over the Christian Athletics.

Harbor Dinner Meeting Topic

The Pacifica Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission will meet at 6 p.m. Thursday at Nick's Rockaway for a joint meeting with the County Harbor District Commission for the purpose of discussing the possibility of harbor development in Pacifica.

Riccardo Leads 'Dagos' to Win Over the B of A

The Daly City Dagos got another fine pitching performance out of Terry Piccardo as they clobbered the Bank of America 13-0 in the recreation department's A softball league.

Piccardo also was the hitting star for the Dagos as he collected three hits and drove home three runs.

Sierra Ski N' Dive kept pace with the Dagos by slipping past Broadway Plumbing by a score of 3-2. Marty Martinez and Carson English wre the hitting stars for the Ski N' Dive team. Jack McRitchie and Bob Greyson also were outstanding in the field for the Ski N' Dive team

Canco jumped into a first place tie with the Dagos and Sierro Ski N' Dive by defeating the Leaping Lizards by a score of 7-2. Andy Ynostroza was outstanding defensively and Larry Fiornell collected 2 hits for the Canco team. In the final game of the week, Dad's Locksmiths collected their first win by defeating the Misfits by a score of 9-1.

B LEAGUE—NORTH DIV.

Mr. G's Radicals has been the surprise team of the late summer league thus far. The Radicals moved into a first place tie by defeating Bader's Jewelers by a score of 20-12. The Radicals showed a great amount of power at the plate as Tom Shaddox and Jack Streeter consistently pounded the ball to lead the Radicals to victory. Lady J Leathers, another surprising team, moved into a first place tie with the Radicals by defeating the Mindblowers by a score of 4-1. Once again the Leathers defense was the big factor in the game. In the final game of the week Nestle Company got their first win by defeating the Coast Guard by a score of 11-2. The bat of Bill Mahoney was too much for the Coast Guard. Mahoney had a home run and two doubles to lead Nestle to victory.

BETTER BUSINESS

By LORENE BEASLEY
Better Business Bureau

You can't tell very much about a used car by kicking the tires, but, you can tell a lot about a used car by looking at it — if you know what to look for. Search for wear on arm rests, upholstery and brake pedal. Check the odometer against the overall condition and appearance of the automobile. If it shows less mileage than you expected, be suspicious.

A quick way to measure the reliability of the odometer is to note mileage records on service station oil stickers. You'll find them pasted to the frame, just inside the driver' side door. If they agree with the odometer, you can be more sure of your purchase.

Take the car on the road. See how it drives. You may want to obtain another opinion on the mechanical condition of the car.

If you're satisfied, then you can consider buying. The sure way to make this selection process simpler, is to start with a reputable dealer. Your Better Business Bureau is a good place to check him out. Before you sign any contract, make sure that all provisions made verbally are included. If the car is to be sold "as is," recognize what that involves. Repairs will be your responsibility. If there is a guarantee on certain parts of the drive train, get it in writing.

And remember any reluctance on the part of the dealer to sell an advertised car could mean trouble. Take these simple precautions before you buy.

Health Group to Determine S.M. Priority

The San Mateo County Comprehensive Health Planning Council, Inc., has been asked to determine the county's health manpower priorities under the Emergency Employment Act recently signed into law by President Nixon, Council President T. Jack Foster, Jr., announced yesterday.

Foster said that the request came from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's San Francisco Regional Office.

He said the task of developing the priorities has been assigned to the Council's Health Manpower Committee and that guidelines should be available by September 3.

When finished, the guidelines will be submitted to the County Manager and the Board of Supervisors.

The Board has already instructed the County Manager, M. D. Tarshes, to apply for a $568,000 grant under the Emergency Employment Act. About $237,000 of it is expected to go to the city of San Mateo.

Chief's Sky-look

Three burglary suspects were arrested by Pacifica police last week, and Chief Mel Nelson watched it all from a helicopter.

The alertness of two teen-aged girls led to the arrests, a police department spokesman said.

They had seen the suspects and provided police with descriptions of them and the car in which they fled the home of Kathleen Carpenter in the Linda Mar region, police said.

Two suspects were let out of the car by the driver in the Rockaway Beach area, where they were apprehended by Sgt. Paul Averiett and Patrolman Tony Conti.

Patrolmen Rich Doninelli and Ron Ho stopped and arrested the driver at Coast Highway and Westport.

A stereo and a radio were recovered, police said.

Chief Nelson watched the action from a San Mateo County Sheriff's Department helicopter. He just happened to be on an observation flight as part of a demonstration of the uses of a helicopter in police work.

Police said Nelson was able to cover and observe the actions of officers and suspects at both locations.

Booked were Robert St. Germain, 24, 416 Cypress Avenue, Joseph Boos, 19, 1439 Greenwood, both of San Bruno, and Joseph Ostergren, 22, a transient, for whom San Bruno reportedly holds an outstanding burglary warrant.

Rabbi Spiegel Jewish Holy Days Official

Rabbi Elliot D. Spiegel will officiate at all services at Congregation B'nai Israel in Daly City-Colma during the coming High Holy Days.

Rabbi Spiegel is presently the headmaster of Akiba Academy, the first western Solomon Schechter Day School, in Los Angeles.

Split Peas Accompany Barbecues

A perfect "go-along" with barbecued meats or fish, Baked Split Peas is also a nice change from potatoes or rice. It's simple to make in advance and reheat later. For this recipe, the split peas are first browned in in oil so they retain their shape during cooking.

BAKED SPLIT PEAS

1 lb. green or yellow split peas, washed and drained
¾ cup chopped onion
1 cup diced ham or sliced bacon ends
4 tablespoons butter
1 quart chicken stock or water
Salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 clove garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
3 large tomatoes, diced

Using a heavy saucepot or Dutch oven with tight-fitting cover, add onion and diced ham or bacon ends. Cook until onions are lightly browned. Add split peas; stir over moderate heat bouillon cubes, do not add salt until peas look dry and are slightly browned. Add the liquid. (If stock is made from until peas have cooked a while. If water is used, add 1¾ teaspoons salt.) Stir in pepper, dry mustard, garlic, bay leaf and two-thirds of the diced tomatoes. Bring mixture to a boil; reduce heat to simmer.

Cover tightly and cook 45 minutes or until peas are tender but not mushy; or, bake in a 350 degree oven about an hour. During last half hour of cooking time, top with remaining tomatoes. Serve at once or refrigerate and reheat for serving later. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Seasider Sandwich

Captain's Seasider Sandwich recipe is one from a 35mm filmstrip, "Sandwiches, Sandwiches, Sandwiches!" developed by Pepperidge Farm for use in schools.

This nautical sandwich begins with plenty of fresh pumpernickel bread. Between the slices are scoops of seafood salad made with a choice of lobster, crab or tuna.

Sailors of old would have loved the hearty bread you use today. They lived on dry biscuits which were a far cry from the tender, full-flavored slices in the Captain's Seasider Sandwich.

Lettuce in the sandwich and cherry tomatoes on the side add color and vitamins. Crisp corn chips contribute satisfying crunch.

CAPTAIN'S SEASIDER SANDWICH

4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 cups lobster, crab, or tuna, shredded
2 tablespoons catsup
½ cup mayonnaise
Pumpernickel bread
Butter or margarine
Lettuce

To make 2 cups of salad mixture, combine eggs, lobster, catsup, and mayonnaise. Blend well. Spread punpernickel bread with butter. For each sandwich, cover bottom slice with lettuce and top with a scoop of lobster salad mixture. Top with second slice of bread and cut in half to serve. Makes four large or six medium sandwiches. For added flourish, serve three half sandwiches to each person, with one standing on its cut side between the other two halves.

Unit Pricing Introduced

Unit pricing, a concept receiving nationwide interest as an aid to grocery shoppers, has been introduced in this area by Albertson's Food Centers, Inc., a chain of 231 food stores in the western states.

The firm's district manager B. K. Semrau reports the consumer service has been named "Tru-Value" because it enables the shopper to analyze comparative values of various grocery items with ease and speed.

"This procedure is made possible through the use of computers," Semrau explained. "We can now apply the unit pricing technique to thousands of items in each supermarket.

"A special marker on the shelf is printed with the cost of the item, plus its cost per ounce, pound, quart or other unit of measure. By watching these tags, the shopper can tell at a glance which of two items is the better value, even though they may be different sizes and prices."

Cranberry Salad Mold with Fowl

Pair one of these cool molded cranberry salads with your next barbecued chicken or turkey. Both cranberry sauce and juice, along with broiler-fryer chickens are being spotlighted by the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service as plentiful-food-to-feature.

RUBY RED SALAD

- 1 3-oz. package raspberry-flavored gelatin
- 1 3-oz. package lemon-flavored gelatin
- ½ cup water
- 1 10-oz. package frozen raspberries, partially thawed
- 1 cup diced pared apples or pears

Heat cranberry juice to boil-water; chill until partially set. Fold in diced apples or pears dissolved. Add raspberries and ing. Add gelatins, stirring till and pour into a 5-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve on a bed of lettuce. Makes eight servings.

CRANBERRY MARBLE SALAD

- 2 cups boiling water
- 1 8¾-oz. can pineapple tidbits
- 1 1-lb. can whole cranberry sauce
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- ½ cup coarsely chopped nuts.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in pineapple and cranberry sauce; chill until partially set. Stir in nuts and spoon into an 8 x 8½-inch pan. Spoon sour cream on top and stir through to make a marble effect. Chill till firm. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce. Makes eight servings.

CRAN-APPLE SALAD

Today's Way with Tarts

This recipe for Maids of Honor is a revised version of an old favorite. If you don't serve all the almond tarts at once, you may freeze the remainder.

If you use your electric blender to grind the almonds, process about one-third cup at a time.

MAIDS OF HONOR

- Rich Pastry Dough (recipe below)
- 2-thirds cup whole blanched almonds
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons heavy cream
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- 12 teaspoons raspberry or strawberry jam

First prepare Rich Pastry Dough; divide into 12 greased tart pans or small muffin cups (one-half cup capacity). Shape against sides and bottom of pans.

Grind almonds in food chopper, Mouli grater or electric blender; mix with sugar, eggs, cornstarch, cream and almond extract. Place 1 level teaspoon jam into bottom of each tart pan; divide almond filling evenly into tart pans over jam. Place tart pans on cooky sheet and bake in center of pre-heated 375-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Tarts will be very light brown in color.

Rich Pastry Dough: Combine 2 cups flour, ½ cup sugar, ¾ cup softened butter or margarine, 2 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon vanilla in bowl; beat with electric mixer or work with fingertips until mixture is moist and crumbly.

Makes 12 tarts.

Salad for Barbecues

Roast slivered almonds on top of the range by stirring with a little salad oil or margarine and a touch of curry powder in a skillet until golden; let cool. Toss the curried roasted almonds with tomato wedges, lettuce and spinach torn into bite-size pieces, sliced green onions and an oil-vinegar dressing. This is a good salad to serve with barbecued meats.

Pacifica Happy With Decision

By JOHN HORGAN

For James R. Brien, yesterday's ruling by the State Supreme Court was a Godsend.

The superintendent of the Laguna Salada School District in Pacifica has long been a proponent of equalizing throughout the state the amount of money each child receives for his education.

And this is precisely what the state's ruling seems to mandate.

The court, by a 6-1 vote, said the state's present system of financing public education is unconstitutional because it discriminates against those children living in poor school districts.

In San Mateo County, Laguna Salada is a good example of that kind of inequity. The district spends less per pupil than any other district in the county—in fact, it is one of the poorest districts in the entire Bay Area.

So, it is no wonder that Brien was jubilant today when he talked about what the court's landmark decision means to Pacifica.

"We feel just great about it, of course," he said. "We here in Pacifica have been maintaining for a long time that the present system is unfair to the students of districts such as Laguna Salada.

"We've had delegations going to Sacramento to propose legislation along those equalization lines for the past two years. Now, the court's decision may be the spur we need."

Brien predicted that change won't occur in the financing system overnight. The tax rates already have been set for the new fiscal year, he said.

"We don't anticipate sudden change," he said. "I'm sure the decision will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. But, on a long-range basis, it forces the State Legislature to consider our type of proposal."

Brien and others connected with education both in this county and elsewhere in the state have pushed for a system of dollar equalization for the state as a whole.

"We have to have some form of determining how to arrive at an equal number of dollars to be spent on the education of each child in the state. We have to determine where the money will come from if it's not going to be from the property tax. Those are the two keys.

"That's all we have to figure out," he said, "and the legislature can't sweep this under the rug now. They'll have to stick with it this time."

However, not everyone connected with education in this county is pleased with the decision. Far from it.

Superintendent Tod Anton of the Hillsborough School District said he hopes that the legislature will allow districts to tax themselves more heavily to retain quality education.

"I really have two concerns," he said. "I know that the cost of living in this county is higher than the cost of living in other parts of the state. We can't educate a child here for the same cost as a district in the Sacramento Valley.

"My second concern is that any finance plan should enable a community to strive for high quality education. Hillsborough has elected to have high quality education and the people have taxed themselves accordingly. We don't want to see districts like ours brought down to a lower level of quality. The state should not prohibit a district from saying we want a high level of education for our children."

He said he would support any bill that incorporates statewide guarantees for every district and every child along with the proviso that, if a district wished to, it could seek a higher level of education through more taxes.

"This area has quality schools," he said. "It would be a shame to see it all eroded away."

Another individual who is not happy with the ruling is Dr. John Linn, a member of the San Mateo Union High School District Board of Trustees and a strong advocate of local control of education tax monies.

"I can't see any way for this (the court's ruling) to be effective without entire state control," he said.

April Voting Slated on Brisbane Trucking

Brisbane voters will decide in April whether they want dirt haul trucks from a nearby rock quarry to continue to rumble through their city.

The council in a 3-1 vote agreed to place the matter on the ballot after a contingent of voters handed over a petition containing some 180 signatures.

Although city attorney David Friedenberg ruled the petition invalid because of a technicality, the council felt the city's 1,105 registered voters should decide the issue.

Brisbane recently entered into a contract with the Pacific Cement and Aggregates Company to allow that firm to transport rock material over city streets from its quarry north of Brisbane.

The agreement was reached after months of negotiations involving the city, PC&A and the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

In turn, the PC&A will pay the city for maintenance of the roads used.

Brisbane had at first tried to halt the quarry haul operation through its streets altogether, suggesting the firm use a route that led through the Crocker Industrial Park.

The argument against the proposed rerouting was the industrial park streets are used by an increasing volume of delivery and pickup trucks.

The motion made Monday to have the matter placed on a special election ballot died when it failed to gain a majority vote.

Two councilmen voted for the special election, while two councilmen voted against. One councilman, Jess Salmon, is on vacation.

However, when the motion was amended to place the issue on the regular April election ballot, it passed 3-1.

Fast Work Sought on Runway Lights

Bids will be invited tomorrow for reconstruction of the runway approach light trestle damaged at San Francisco Airport July 30 in a Boeing 747 mishap.

Airport Director James K. Carr said a contract award would be expected by this Friday, so that repair work "can proceed on double shifts."

Carr said the city's share of work must be done before "by early October" so that the instrument landing system guide can be in operation when bad weather sets in.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Frank Happy said the FAA would restore the lights, while the Airports Department is rebuilding the trestle.

Happy said "we will coordinate the light system work with that of trestle repairs, and we intend that the work can begin while part of the trestle repair is still in progress." He said he expected the completion of the lighting work to be "early November."

He said early restoration is necessary for the lighting system, which helps guide instrument approaches to Runway 19-Right (the opposite end of Runway 1-Left).

More than 100 feet of the 1100 foot trestle, and the landing aid lights, were damaged when a heavily loaded Boeing 747 failed to adequately clear the runway on take-off.

Carr said the San Francisco Airport Department Airports Commission had appropriated $50,000 for its share of the reconstruction.

The Airport staff, and the FAA, agreed that the expedited work will be programmed to cause an absolute minimum of interference with use of the runway.

Approval of emergency procedures by the Airports Commission earlier this month will allow bids to be requested tomorrow by the airport staff, and accepted Friday, without waiting for formal Commission action.

The emergency procedures were approved when commissioners recongnized the necessity to expedite reconstruction and repair of the light trestle landing aid.

Youths Held in Robbery

Three youths were arrested on charges of strongarm robbery in Redwood City Friday night after they allegedly beat a 17-year-old boy and robbed him of $15.

The trio and a 15-year-old girl were taken into custody after they returned to the scene, the parking area of the Starlite Super Market, 1950 El Camino Real, to look for a watch lost by one of the suspects.

The robbery victim, Oddbar J. Soma, 17, of 334 Hillview Avenue, Redwood City, told Policeman Milton Borgens that he was in his car shortly before 8:30 a.m. when he was approached by a teen-aged girl who asked him for money.

After he declined an older boy approached his vehicle, pounded on the top of it with his fist and challenged him to a fight, Soma related.

Soma said he was attacked from the front and rear, knocked down and kicked. His attackers fled in a car.

Police were at the scene when the car returned, and the victim identified the occupants as his assailants. They had returned to look for the watch, lost by one of the suspects, Barry E. Hogue, 19, of Waterford, Calif.

Hogue was arrested, along with his companions, Edwin H. Flournoy, 19, of 211 Poplar Avenue, and John W. Bullivant, 18, of 45 Hillview Avenue, both of Redwood City. They were booked at county jail. The girl was charged with delinquency and released to her mother.

Police said Soma suffered bruises and a cut lip, and that his clothing was ripped.

Pacifica Street Road Tested

Traffic on Manor Drive in Pacifica was observed Saturday by the Pacifica Health and Safety Commission, police and city engineering personnel.

The group rode up and down the street, which is narrow and on a steep grade, watching cars drive in tight lanes between other cars parked at the curbs. The observers stopped at various points on curves, where sight distance was minimal.

The trip was the result of a study session promise at a public hearing August 17, called to hear opinions of residents of the controversial street and its safety problems.

At the meeting, about 20 persons insisted that they have a right to continue parking at the curbs. The meeting drew about 60 persons.

A recommendation by DeLeuw, Cather and Co., San Francisco traffic engineering consultants was read to the audience at that time. The preliminary report of the complete study indicated that parking be restricted on one side of the street. Another alternative was to have no parking on both sides at the sites of most of the street's accidents.

A recommendation for control of traffic, including parking, stop signs and other regslatory measures is expected from the commission at its next regular meeting September 21 at Oceana High School.

Traffic Class

The Jefferson Adult School, 6996 Mission Street, Daly City, will offer an introductory course in California freight rates and freigh traffic management, starting September 13, at 7 p.m.

The course will cover how to determine the correct intrastate California freight charges emphasizing surcharges, minimum charges, split delivery (master billing), volume incentive rates and railhead rates. Freight classification and classification rules will be covered as necessary. The traffic management portion will use the text "Practical Handbook of Industrial Traffic Management" by Richard C. Colton and Edmund S. Ward.

The aim of the course is to give the beginning student a better understanding of freight transportation and some ideas on how to obtain lower shipping charges.

Anyone interested or with any questions should attend the first session in Room 207.

Registration fee is $1, plus purchase of a textbook.

Westborough Tax Rate Cut

Continuing its policy of reducing the tax rate, the Westborough County Water District has set is 1971-1972 tax rate at $1.05. When compared with the 1970-1971 rate of $1.30, this is a reduction of nearly 20 per cent.

The most important factor which contributed to this decrease was the increase in the assessed vaiuation brought about by reassessment and by new construction, officers said.

Since the District has progressively reduced its tax rate from $1.51 to the present $1.05. This is a total reduction of over 30 per cent. Tax collections within the district have been at about 95 per cent.

Officers, Matron Join SSFPD

Four new patrolmen and a clerk-matron have begun duties at the South San Francisco Police Department.

The new officers are Patrick Murphy, 21, Mark Raffaelli, 22, Bruce Tognetti, 22, and Jay Stenquist, 24. The matron is Carolyn Middleton, 24.

Tognetti and Raffaelli joined the department July 16. Tognetti has previous experience as a police intern and part-time dispatcher-clerk. Raffaelli worked as an intern for the South San Francisco department.

Raffaelli is a graduate of Serra High School and received an associate arts degree at College of San Mateo. He later earned a B.A. degree in police science and administration at Sacramento State College. He is married.

Tognetti attended the University of California at Berkeley. He has a bachelor of arts degree in criminology, and was born in South San Francisco.

The other three new employes joined the department August 16. Murphy attended El Camino High School and the College of San Mateo, where he was a police science major.

Stenquist attended high school in San Ramon, and studied police science at Diablo Valley Junior College. He was discharged from the Air Force in February, attaining the rank of sergeant as an aircraft control operator.

Miss Middleton is a native of Sacramento where she was a former dispatcher with the Sacramento Police Department.

Grass Fire

Thirty Belmont, San Carlos and Division of Forestry firemen joined forces Thursday to put out a two-acre grass and brush fire on the south side of Club Drive in the San Carlos foothills.

Two Belmont firemen were injured. Dick Rickon suffered a wrenched shoulder and Tait Smith sustained second-degree burns on his left arm. Neither was hospitalized.

Explosion at State Building

Powerful bombs ripped two State Department of Corrections offices Saturday in San Francisco and Sacramento, and a Department of Rehabilitation office in San Mateo.

The blasts, which authorities said apparently were coordinated, caused extensive damage.

No injuries were reported.

The California Department of Rehabilitation's San Mateo office was severely damaged shortly after midnight Friday by an explosion apparently caused by a bomb.

The blast knocked down several interior walls of the single-story structure at 450 Peninsula Avenue, shattered nearly ever pane of glass in the building, and unhinged its front door.

Many residents of the area were awakened by the blast.

Flying debris did moderate damage to an unused adjacent building 20 feet away across a walkway.

Glass fragments littered the walkway, an alley on the opposite side of the 450 Peninsula Avenue building, and one lane of the street itself.

Police said that the building was inspected by its owner shortly after the explosion, but no damage estimate was made available.

The building was unoccupied at the time of the explosion, police said, and no one was injured.

San Mateo police cordoned off the area while a U.S. Treasury Department bomb squad searched for clues.

The damaged building is about five miles from the Internal Revenue's San Mateo office, which was hit by a bomb last Sunday. Damage from that explosion was estimated at $75,000.

Countywide Reaction Is Mixed

possibility of increased taxation for education.

Greenwood said the decision could have the far-reaching effect of breaking down the unification barrier, which Jefferson Elementary previously opposed because of its financial condition.

"I hope some provision will be made for a local school district that wants more than just an average education to provide it," said Greenwood.

Joe Smith, financial expert of the South San Francisco Unified School Dstrict, said that district is "so close to the average it (decision) would hae a minimum affect to us."

South San Francisco gets no additional aid above the minimum basic aid all districts receive.

Smith said the present systems of basic aid, correctly referred to as "equalization aid," and the "supplementary aid" some poorer districts receive, is a small step by the state to help districts, whereas the recent decision is a giant step.

The San Bruno Park Unified School District falls into this same category of "average."

Business Manager Sherill Houghton said, "I can't react until I know what plans the legislature comes up with. We're in that middle ground where it's hard to tell what affect there will be."

Ed Morgan, Superintendent of the Jefferson High School District in Daly City, said, "The whole tax setup is badly in need of a top-to-bottom overhaul. I hail the decision." — Bob Peterson
